SUNDRY CIVIL APPROPRIATIONS.

Filibustering by Democrats.

WASHINGTON, June 8, 1872.

SENATE.

The Senate met 8 P. M. Mr. Anthony was chosen President pro tem.

THANKS TO COLFAX.

A resolution of thanks to Vice President Colfax for the courtesy, dignity, ability and impartiality exhibited by him as presiding officer was unanimously passed.

REFUNDING DUTIES.

The House bill refunding duties on goods in bond on August 1st, 1872, was passed.

A WOMAN'S WAR CLAIM.

A memorial of Anna Ella Carroll, asking compensation for valuable information furnished the War Department during the war, was ordered printed.

VIENNA INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

The bill authorizing the President to appoint commissioners to the Vienna International Exhibition in 1872, was passed.

ANACOSTA RAILROAD.

After some debate on the Anacosta Railroad bill, without action, the Senate went into executive session, and soon after adjourned to 9 o'clock on Monday morning.

HOUSE.

PENSIONS.

The conference report on the bill increasing the pensions for disabilities was agreed to.

POLITICAL DISABILITIES REMOVED.

The bill to remove the political disabilities of Jabez L. M. Curry, of Richmond, Virginia, was passed, with amendments adding the names of half a dozen other residents of Virginia, and of C. B. Memminger, of Charleston, South Carolina.

EASTERN NEVADA R. R.

Mr. STEVENSON, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported a bill granting right of way to the Eastern Nevada railroad company. Passed.

INDIAN LANDS IN MARKET.

Mr. DUNNELL, from the same committee, reported a substitute for the Senate bill restoring to the market all lands remaining undisposed of in the reservation of the Ottawa and Chippewa Indians in Michigan. Passed.

SUNDRY CIVIL APPROPRIATION BILL.

The amendments of the Senate to the sundry civil appropriation bill having been sent to the House, Mr. GARFIELD moved that they be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

This was objected to by Mr. BROOKS on the ground that it would be facilitating the passage of a bill with the objectionable amendment known as the "enforcement act."

The Speaker, in reply to a question, stated that the bill was now on the Speaker's table, and could not be reached without a two-thirds majority, while it would require only a majority vote to pass it after it came from the Committee on Appropriations.

HOMESTEAD ENTRY.

The bill restoring the right of homestead entry to certain soldiers and sailors who had forfeited that right on technical grounds was passed.

The morning hour having expired, Mr. GARFIELD moved that at 3:30 P. M. the House proceed to the business on the Speaker's table, a motion which required only a majority vote, and which would enable the House to reach the sundry civil appropriation bill.

FILIBUSTERING BY DEMOCRATS.

This motion started a filibustering movement on the part of the Democrats, commencing with a motion by Mr. Holman that the House take a recess till 7 P. M., and one by Mr. Eldridge that the House adjourn, on which motion the yeas and nays were demanded.

After wasting another hour in voting, Mr. GARFIELD moved to non-concur in the amendments and refer them to a Conference Committee.

Mr. CAMPBELL favored the motion.

Mr. BECK stated that the Democrats would vote for every thing but the bayonet amendment, and suggested that the Committee on Appropriations take the bill as it now stood, with the exception of that obnoxious amendment, and pass it as the original bill, and send it to the Senate.

Mr. GARFIELD said the objection to that was, that many other amendments ought not to be agreed to. They increased the appropriation by $150,000.

Mr. BECK thought it would be better to let that amount be wasted than to place bayonets at every polling place in the country.

Mr. FARNSWORTH argued that the minority would have the same chance of defeating this legislation after the report of the Conference Committee as now, and was not at all certain that the Senate would not recede from the objectionable amendment.

After further colloquy, an attempt to effect an amicable compromise failed, and the weary routine of calling the yeas and nays on dilatory motions was resumed. Finally a motion to take a recess was agreed to.

SOUTHERN CLAIMS.

The conference report on the bill to pay the claims allowed by the Southern Claims Commission was agreed to.

INDIAN FRAUDS.

The report of the Committee on Investigation of Indian frauds was ordered printed.

FORTIFICATION BILL.

The conference report on the fortification appropriation bill was agreed to.

FILIBUSTERING AGAIN.

Filibustering was continued until 9:50 P. M., when Mr. GARFIELD moved to suspend the rules and adopt a resolution non-concurring in the Senate amendments to the sundry civil appropriation bill and refer them to a Conference Committee and then take a recess until 8 o'clock on Monday morning. Agreed to.

Messrs. Garfield, Palmer, and Niblack were appointed as a Conference Committee.

At 10 P. M. the House took a recess till 8 o'clock on Monday morning.

CHICAGO.

The Great Storm.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Further reports from the great storm of Thursday night in Central Illinois show that there was an immense amount of damage done in Peoria, Fulton, Knox and other counties in that section of the State, the destruction of bridges on the county roads having been almost universal. In the city of Peoria, fences and trees were blown down, cellars filled with water, and every railroad leading out of the city suffered more or less. No trains left there yesterday. The Chicago and Quincy Railroad had about four miles of track and many bridges swept away. The Toledo, Peoria and Wabash Road also suffered severely, losing one 150 feet bridge, and the entire road bed in a number of places is gone. A large force of men is at work repairing damages, and there will be but little detention to trains.

In the town of Hilton the damages are fearful. The town is almost flooded with water, and barns, stock, &c., have been swept miles away. The most singular thing is the running up stream of the Illinois river. The immense volume of water pouring into the river below has created a back water, and there is a strong current running northward. The river last night was rising very rapidly, and fears of damages from this source were anticipated.

THE INDIANS.

Sioux Concentrating Near Fort Berthold.

SIOUX CITY, June 8.—A special correspondent of the Journal, now at Fort Bufort, Dakota, writes under date of June 1st, that the Sioux Indians are on the war path. There is now a camp of three hundred and sixty-five lodges rendezvoused within ten miles of Fort Berthold, and their numbers are being daily increased. It is said to be the intention of the party to attack Fort Berthold as soon as they can muster two thousand warriors. There seems to be an unusual spirit of hostility among all the Sioux on the Upper Missouri. The chief of a band now near Fort Berthold made a speech on the 27th ult., to his hostile braves, telling them that war had been declared, and that every one of the Sioux chiefs would stand by the decision of the council that made the declaration. He further said that Fort Berthold would be the scene of the opening of the hostilities and Fort Bufort would next receive attention.

TORONTO, June 7.—Fort Garvey advices state that unless there is a treaty soon made with the Indians in Saskatchawan, there will be trouble, as many American traders are among them, furnishing them with liquor.

BOSTON.

How the Schooner Enola was Seized.

BOSTON, May 8.—One of the charterers and crew of the schooner Enola, seized in Trinity Bay by a Canadian revenue cutter, arrived in Gloucester, Mass., and made an affidavit as to the particulars of the seizure before Collector Robson, which has been forwarded to Washington. The affidavit shows that the Enola committed no violation of the fishery laws until misled by the officers of the Canadian vessel into the belief that the Washington treaty had been ratified and they had the right to fish in shore. After the seizure the Americans learned that they had been purposely misled, both as to the character of the Canadian vessel and status of the treaty question. The commander of the revenue cutter, when charged with duplicity, replied that he had no right to give Americans information. They must look out for themselves.

CINCINNATI.

Arrest of Illicit Distillers.

CINCINNATI, June 9.—Deputy United States Marshal A. J. Harrington passed through the city yesterday, en route for Louisville, with eight prisoners; namely, John McCallum, of Floyd county, Hiram Grier, Samuel W. Browne, Jr., D. Boone Brown and H. W. Cisco, of Morgan county, Thos. Cranch and Jas. Wilson, of Wolff county, and Elliott Arnold, of Lawrence county. These parties are charged with carrying on illicit distilleries. Lieut. Robert Young and eleven men of the Seventh United States Cavalry guarded the prisoners. The Marshal reports that he broke up five distilleries, the owners of which escaped arrest. The Marshal and a posse of men fired on them without effect.

GREAT BRITAIN.

BRITISH VIEW OF THE AMERICAN CLAIMS.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The London Telegraph of the 28th ult. states that Commissioners Cohen and Young, appointed by the Board of Trade to examine the claims of the American case, consider that the total claims, amounting to $17,800,000, will be amply met by $8,000,000.

The report of the Admiralty Commissioners on claims for expenses incurred by the United States Navy in pursuit of Confederate cruisers concludes that the greater part of the claim of seven millions is inadmissable, and that if Great Britain was held liable for the four cruisers, the Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Shenandoah, the amount could not exceed one million and a half.

THE ARMY BILL.

PARIS, June 8.—The session of the National Assembly to-day was mainly devoted to debate on the army bill. Thiers participated in the discussion, and made the principal speech. He solemnly proclaimed that France desires a long peace with all nations, and opposed the views of General Trochu on the bill.

On the conclusion of the debate, the amendment of General Trochu reducing the terms of service in the army from five years, as provided by the bill, to three, with a provision that the term be reduced to two years for meritorious conduct, was rejected by a vote of 462 to 228.

It is reported that Quiroga is wounded.

LONDON, CANADA, June 8.—There is considerable excitement here caused by the alleged abduction of an American named Rufus Bratton, charged with robbing a postoffice near Hillsboro, N. C. He was seized in this place by a party under command of a detective officer, and taken to Detroit under the influence of chloroform. From there he was taken to North Carolina. The facts have been represented to the Dominion Government by a legal firm, and extradition demanded.

THE history of the Pacific Mail Company illustrates the vicissitudes of Wall street. A few years ago that stock was advanced by the mere force of popularity and large dividends, the latter being often twenty per cent. per annum. In 1868 Leonard Jerome gave his opinion that it was worth $200, and this was after it had met a heavy decline. From $300 it declined to $30. One individual who invested $30,000 in the Pacific Mail soon found it valued at $120,000. He then died, and before his estate was settled the value had fallen to $12,000. Many families who had their entire funds thus invested were reduced to extreme poverty. The price has recently advanced and has reached $75.

WASHINGTON, June 9, 1872.

THE APPROPRIATION BILLS.

Three of the general appropriation bills have not yet become laws. Two of them are enrolled and await the President's signature; namely, making appropriations for fortifications and rivers and harbors. The sundry civil appropriation bill is in conference. The committee on the disagreeing votes, immediately after their appointment last night, held a brief meeting last night, and resumed their business to-day. They have agreed on a report as to all the amendments, with the exception of that amendatory of the election enforcement act of February 28th, 1872, which is the only one that endangers the passage of the bill. The report will first be made to the Senate, to be acted on there before sent to the House. According to present advices, the last named amendment will be presented separately to the Senate, and two of the three members of the committee, on the part of that body, (Messrs. Cole and Stevenson) will recommend that the Senate recede from it. If the Senate shall do so, that amendment will again come before the House.

Later.—The following is a later and more exact account of the action of the Committee of Conference on the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill. Toward evening the committee had acted on eighty-eight of the eighty-nine amendments, and thus far everything in the committee was harmonious. They then returned to the seventh amendment, supplementary to the election law, which had been reserved for distinctive consideration. The question was then presented of making this the subject of a separate report, in short, any recommendation so that the Senate might, if they thought proper, recede from it, and thus save the bill while concurring in a unanimous report embodying all the other amendments, or, if the Senate should not recede from said amendment, the House might have an opportunity of voting on it as an independent measure. The members were earnest in the expression of their views, but the minority, Mr. Stevenson, of the Senate, and Mr. Niblack, of the House, the only two Democrats, were unable to accomplish their purpose, objecting to a separate report. As Messrs. Edmunds and Cole, of the Senate, and Messrs. Garfield and Palmer, of the House, were inclined to embodying the election laws amendment in the report with other amendments, Messrs. Stevenson and Niblack withdrew from the committee, leaving the other members to frame the report in accordance with the wishes of the majority, which they have done, with several modifications of the original proposition. The report will be presented to the Senate as soon as they shall meet to-morrow, and having been agreed to, will be sent to the House.

Some of the Democrats to-night say they will endeavor to prevent its adoption in that body by filibustering, as they were assured on Saturday that they would lose none of their right by consenting that the disagreeing amendments to the bill should go to the Committee of Conference. Other Democrats, however, are inclined to let the report be adopted, saying that if the bill should fail, and an extra session called, the majority would not only pass a bill containing the objectionable election law features, but other measures to them equally distasteful. Should the Democrats continue dilatory motions until noon, in order to defeat the sundry civil expenses bill, an extra session will be called, and it is even said by some of them that they understand that a message convoking the two Houses has already been prepared by the President.

There is much comment and speculation everywhere concerning the events of to-morrow.

ADDRESS TO VICE PRESIDENT COLFAX.

A number of Indiana delegates to the National Republican Convention, with Indiana Republican Congressmen, called at the Vice President's room at the Capitol yesterday, and Judge Denny, of Evansville, addressed Colfax in their behalf as follows:

Mr. Vice President—Those of the Indiana delegates now in this city, on their way home, with others of your personal and political friends, are unwilling to leave without making this call and expressing their high appreciation of the invaluable services rendered by you to the Republican party and to the country, and while we, as Indianians, regret your defeat at the late Republican Convention, where we constantly labored for your nomination as a candidate for the office of Vice President of the United States, we at the same time feel proud of your patriotic conduct in connection with us in the hearty and cordial endorsement of the ticket then nominated, and we heartily approve the sentiments contained in your telegram to Col. Foster. Be assured that we have a strong ticket, which bears the names of men whose respective private and public characters are so pure and high that the country must approve them at the ballot box in November. Before closing this interview, we cannot refrain from expressing also our high appreciation of the honorable manner in which you saw fit to conduct yourself during the earnest canvass made by the Indiana Republican Committee to assure your nomination. While we cannot resist the impression that if you had consented to make personal efforts in your own behalf, such as all candidates are permitted to make, without loss of character or manhood, your success would have crowned our efforts. We are at the same time constrained to admit that the dignified course which you chose to adopt deserves greater honor than could be conferred by any office within the gift of the American people. We beg leave to reassure you of our gratitude for the patriotic services you have rendered the country, and of our personal esteem and confidence.

Mr. Colfax replied that he was proud to be the recipient of such warm and earnest friendship as that exhibited by the delegations from Indiana and other States, and so kindly expressed in Judge Denny's cordial remarks. He bowed to the decision of the convention without a murmur or regret, and should prove hereafter as faithful to the Republican creed in private life as when he had been the standard bearer of the cause. He replied that after eighteen years of public life, with all his acts like an open page of a book before the people, the worst that was said of him at Philadelphia was that he had written a letter stating his willingness and desire to retire from official position, and afterwards consented to accept the renomination if the party deemed it best. This charge he could not deny, but he had never written or said anything broader than is found in the expressions of that much-quoted letter. So much has been said about it that, now the Convention is over, he felt that he had a right to tell his home friends what his lips had been sealed on heretofore; namely, in that it was not written nor intended for publication. He had expected to submit the desire he felt, and which was expressed in it, to leading Republicans from his own State and elsewhere when Congress reassembled, for their advice, but he said he must add, in justice to a valued friend to whom he wrote, that the letter was not marked "confidential," and from a public man on a public question that friend had an unquestionable right to infer that it was not private, and therefore he justified him fully in printing it. When he decided last November, at the appeal of many active Republicans from Indiana and other sections of the Union, that his renomination or retiracy was a question which the party should decide rather than himself, he felt it would be improper to electioneer with any one on the subject, and he did not. On the contrary, he told every delegate he saw that his name ought not to be presented if another candidate could be found who would cause greater unity and certainty of victory to the cause he loved far better than political honors. The Republican organization, the records of whose great deeds for liberty, humanity, justice and nationality during the past decade are unapproached by any political party in any age, has other advancing steps of progress and reform to take before disbandment or furlough from duty. While going himself, therefore, to the retired list, without the slightest unkind feeling towards any one who desired a change in the Vice Presidency, and wishing them especially a decisive victory in October, in our closely contested State he should join with them in November in cordially supporting Grant and Henry Wilson for President and Vice President of the United States.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

Southerly winds, veering to westwardly, and partially cloudy weather for new England on Monday, and for the Middle States, with probably occasionally areas of light rain during to-night and on Monday; clear and partially cloudy weather and light to fresh winds from the eastern gulf and South Atlantic coasts to Lake Erie and the upper lakes; with occasional areas of light rain to-night, but clearing away very generally on Monday; dangerous winds not anticipated.

NOMINATIONS CONFIRMED.

The Senate in executive session last night confirmed the following nominations: Gilderoy Wells, Kentucky, Consul at Copenhagen; Isaac Wells, Marshal for the Eastern District of Montana; Abram G. Hoyt, New Mexico, Register of Land Office at Santa Fe; Edward F. Douglass, Postmaster at Houghton, Michigan; Wm. N. Granger, Nevada, Register of Land Office in that State.

THE TREATY QUESTION.

No information has been received from London to-day showing any change in the situation on the treaty question. The British are taking further time to consider.

TREATY WITH JAPAN.

In about two weeks the treaty between the United States and Japan will be completed, when the embassy will end their official relations with the Government.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, June 6, 1872.

THE PHILADELPHIA CONVENTION.

All accounts concur that the Convention is an assemblage of the representative men of our country. Eye-witnesses bear testimony that a more intelligent and solid assemblage has rarely gathered in the United States. Considering that the nomination of Grant was a foregone conclusion, there is very considerable enthusiasm manifested.

The speech of Gerritt Smith was not only effective in itself, but is remarkable as coming from a veteran in the abolition cause, and one who had long retired from partisan conflicts.

COLFAX AND GRANT.

This morning while walking up the avenue I happened to meet Schuyler Colfax, who seemed to be more disturbed than usual for a gentleman with such a smiling and prepossessing appearance. We passed the usual salutations, but he hurried on, as one exceedingly preoccupied. Not far behind came the President, taking his accustomed walk, with the inevitable cigar to his mouth, looking as unconcerned as he did on the day of the fall of Richmond or the surrender of Lee. Perfect self-possession seems to be his leading characteristic.

ANOTHER PRESIDENTIAL CONVENTION.

The Free Trade men who lost the control of the Cincinnati Convention by the manauevres of Gratz Brown and the Greeley strikers are determined not to submit to the swindle. It is understood that another Convention will be called to meet at Cincinnati on the fourth of July for the purpose of nominating candidates and presenting them to the Baltimore Democratic Convention for its acceptance. Thus our Democratic friends will be placed like the ass between two bundles of hay, and it is hard to tell by which side they will be attracted. It is of no consequence, however, which way the minority sides, for it is certain that the Republican party has a clear majority in a sufficient number of States to secure the election of Grant.

THE NEW REFORM INSIGHT.

President Grant, before he signs any of the numerous private bills that are annually hurried through Congress without much consideration, has established a practice of sending every one to the department to which it appertains for a thorough and rigid examination before signing the same. This new system has already enabled him to detect several frauds, for he has vetoed some half dozen private bills already: and the care thus taken has not only saved the government large sums, but has prevented the establishment of precedents which would have cost much more.

EDUCATIONAL EFFORTS.

Earnest efforts are being made here by the friends of education to induce the territorial legislature to establish four additional primary schools in which the new method of objective teaching known as the Kindergarten system will be introduced.

There are in this city one hundred and twenty-three private schools, and about one hundred and thirty public schools. The existence of so large a number of private schools, notwithstanding the fact that parents are taxed for the support of the public schools, is evidence that the latter are not conducted as efficiently and successfully as they ought to be.

The Kindergarten method has made great progress both in Germany and in the United States. It has already been adopted as part of the public school system in Boston, and it is to be hoped that it may yet be introduced throughout the Union.

DIMINUTION OF OFFICES.

The new tariff and revenue bill which, however, will not go fully into effect until January next, provides for a large reduction of internal revenue officers. In the place of some three hundred collectors and assessors, there will be only eighty, and other officers are returned in the same proportion. Thus without ostentation, these great civil service reforms are being carried out, and very soon the people will not only derive the benefits of diminished taxation, but also a great diminution of our national expenditures.

The first examination under the new civil service rules in the Treasury Department took place yesterday. There were twenty-one contestants for the vacancies in the Third Auditor's office. Another trial for vacancies in the Sixth Auditor's office takes place to-day.

The War Department is completing arrangements for starting the expedition for the survey of the North-west boundary. Experienced engineers will be detailed to accompany the expedition.

General S. A. Duncan, Assistant Commissioner of Patents, has resigned his position.

AGATE.

CURIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC.

IT IS said that at least thirty thousand pounds of Iodine are manufactured annually.

TO PREVENT the tendency of powdered camphor to cake or form crystals, Professor William Proctor, in the American Journal of Pharmacy, recommends that it be mixed with two or three per cent. of carbonate of magnesia.

AN unusually brilliant auroral display, which was visible in London on the night of February 4, was also noticed in Ireland, Scotland, Wales, France, Turkey and Egypt. In Alexandria a large space of sky was illuminated for five hours.

A RECENT French patent adds finely-divided sponge to ordinary paper pulp. The paper thus made absorbs water readily, and remains moist for a considerable time. It has been used for dressing wounds, and will doubtless prove valuable in many surgical operations.

PROF. Young's success in photographing a solar prominence by means of the spectroscope, though for the present comparatively unimportant, gives reason to hope that the condition of the suns's limb will ere long be as continuously and systematically photographed as the condition of the solar surface.

VAN NOSTRAND'S Eclectic Engineering Magazine, for March, reports the invention of Dr. Robert Hunter, of an India rubber plate, to be attached to the stern of a canal boat, and moved by steam in the manner of a fish's tail. The experiments with this method of propulsion are said to promise great success.

MR. GARROD reports, in the Journal of Anatomy and Physiology, some observations made on himself, showing that the exposure of the nude body to temperatures below 70 degrees Fahrenheit causes a rise in the internal temperature of the body, which is greater the lower the temperature of the surrounding air. When the temperature was 70 degrees or upwards no rise was observed.

IN the year 1829, the Scotch furnaces used eight tons of coal in the form of coke to make one ton of pig iron. The amount at the present day is only about one ton of coal to a ton of iron. The economy has been effected mainly by three improvements: the hot blast, invented by James Beaumont Nelson, of Glasgow, in 1828, and introduced in 1833; the heating of the charge by increasing the height of the furnace, and by calcining the ore and flux, and the complete and profitable utilization of the waste gases.

FIVE years ago the price of bromine, according to the Boston Journal of Chemistry, was about eight dollars a pound; now it is less than a dollar and a half a pound, and the consumption has increased a thousand fold. The supply formerly came from Germany, especially from the Stassfurt salt mines; now our own strong salines in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia produce all that we require. A manufacturer who did not use twenty pounds a year before 1866, now orders as much as a thousand pounds at one time.

PROF. S. H. LOCKETT'S observation of the buzzing sound and the electrical brush, when holding out a cane or key arm's length from the Niagara Suspension Bridge towards the falls, exemplifies a repetition, on a small scale, of the St. Elmo fires so often seen on shipboard. The increased effect when the wind blows a large amount of vapor over the bridge reminds one of Professor Lesley's observations on the curtain aurora, in Nova Scotia, the streamers being developed in fog-belts that passed in succession over his head.

RECENT observers having been unable to find more than four of the satellites of Uranus, many astronomers have discarded Sir William Herschel's observations upon the other four. But Mr. Proctor defends Herschel's claims, because it has never happened that while he expressed certainty about a matter of observation, he has been shown to have been in error. Herschel distinctly stated that he had not kept back the announcement of satellites on account of any doubts, but because he hoped to determine the elements of the orbits.

BY MEANS of the carbon process, as it is termed by photographers, productions are now obtained of large dimensions of great artistic excellence. In carrying out this beautiful process, the operator spreads on glass a very thin collodion; when this has been effected, he covers it with a very thin layer of gelatin, which is afterwards rendered insoluble. On these two layers adhering together, there is finally spread the sensitive mixture in which the image should afterwards appear. After drying, the film is easily detached from the glass, and is sufficiently rigid to be handled. The exposure is made in the usual way, and the washings are proceeded with afterwards in the customary manner.

SIG. EUGENIO DE ZUCCATO, of Padua, has invented a valuable contrivance for duplicating manuscripts or designs. To the bed and upper layer of a copying press are attached wires leading from a small battery, so that when the top of the instrument is screwed down the two metal surfaces come in contact, and an electric current passes. An iron plate resting upon the bed of the press is coated with varnish, and upon its surface the design to be copied is traced with a steel point. A few sheets of copying paper are impregnated with an acid solution of prussiate of potash, and placed upon the scratched plate, which is subjected to pressure. An electric current passes wherever the lines have left the metal bare, and prussiate of iron is found, reproducing the original in blue characters.

NEW YORK.

The Labor Revolution.

THE STRIKE SPREADING.

What Red Cloud Wants.

DR. LANAHAN INTERVIEWED.

Cruelty in the Navy.

NEW YORK, June 8, 1872.

WHAT RED CLOUD WANTS.

Red Cloud, in his speech last night at the Cooper Institute, said he wanted the Great Father at Washington to protect him in his own country, so he could build school houses and churches, and bring up his children as the whites do theirs. He had come here to get encouragement to work, and would return to his own country and imitate the best qualities of the whites. There were men enough in the West to take care of themselves, and he wished the Great Father would take the military forces away and leave the Indians alone.

THE LABOR REVOLUTION.

Including the new societies representing the trades hitherto unorganized, the number of workingmen combined under the Protection Trade Associations amounts to nearly one hundred thousand. The Eight Hour League now numbers twenty-one thousand four hundred members, all of whom have struck for reduced time. The strikes have now extended to thirty-two trades. Twelve of them have been successful, and the men have returned to work. In fourteen trades, represented in the Eight Hour League, one-third of the men have resumed work upon their own terms.

At a meeting of the Police Commissioners, yesterday, permission to parade was given, and a police escort promised to the Eight Hour League, provided the members did not march below Canal street, and keep ten feet off the curb.

Gen. Shaler was in consultation with the Police Commissioners to-day to consider the probabilities of disturbances among the strikers next week. If necessary, the militia will be called on to assist in preserving order.

The working men are making great preparations for the parade on Monday, which will be a very large one.

A few concessions of employers in various trades were announced to-day. The threatened strike of the employes of the gas companies has been averted by an amicable arrangement of the difficulties complained of by the workingmen.

REFORMED CHURCH SYNOD.

At the session of the Reformed Church Synod to-day, Rev. G. Davis, delegate from the United States Reformed Synod, urged the adoption of the Heidelberg catechism by the Synod. He made an address as to the best means of bridging over the difficulty.

Dr. R. L. Mendorf did not see how a union could be effected between the two Synods.

The report of the committee on the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, after some discussion, was adopted.

RED CLOUD AND THE JAPANESE.

Red Cloud and his party and a portion of the Japanese Embassy met to-day in a Wall street banking-house while the former were being shown through that financial centre, and were introduced. The Indians subsequently visited the Custom House, Stock Exchange, Sub Treasury and other points of interest in Wall street.

THE JAPANESE.

Yoshida, the Japanese Minister of Finance, accompanied by General Williams and others, sailed for Europe to-day. The party return in July.

NEW YORK, June 9, 1872.

THE GREAT STRIKE.

The features of the great strike in this city remain nearly the same, although a progressive movement on the part of the strikers still continues.

Great preparations are making for the grand demonstration to-morrow. The executive committee of the Eight Hour League states that if the day is fine 100,000 workingmen will participate in it, and representations of trades will take part in it from many other cities. Bands have been engaged to head all the trades enrolled in the league, and there will be a great display of banners and transparencies bearing mottoes of the various trades unions. The leaders predict that the magnitude of the demonstration will greatly aid their cause.

The Brooklyn masons have struck for eight hours, and passed resolutions that any of the society working after the strike be fined fifty dollars and be considered ineligible to re-enter the organization.

DR. LANAHAN INTERVIEWED.

The Times has the following: Dr. Lanahan, in conversation yesterday, said he is satisfied that his arrest was the result of a combination between Dr. Carleton, Dr. Curry and Mr. Depuy, who he feels sure induced Goodenough to swear out a warrant. He also says that Abram Nelson, now in prison at the suit of Phelps, Dodge & Co., received a large quantity of morocco leather, and which, when discovered, led to Nelson's arrest, though for some reason the charge was subsequently allowed to drop. Lanahan says he shall take no farther steps in regard to the Book Concern, though he has been assured that not one-half of the frauds perpetrated in it have been disclosed; but he believes that the Church has now received sufficient warning to take care of its own interests. The present Book Committee, he thinks, is composed of honest men, and he is contented to know that the fight has not been entirely in vain.

CRUELTY IN THE NAVY.

The World has a private letter from an officer of the United States steamer Kansas, from Graytown, May 10, stating that Lieut. Commander White, on the 5th inst., caused the death of seaman David H. Cady by suffocation, brought about by White holding one of the large deck swaths over Cady's mouth. At the time of his death he was in double irons for drunkenness, and this treatment was resorted to in order to make him stop his noise, which he had been ordered to do, and refused.

SWINDLES IN BROOKLYN.

The Brooklyn Committee of Fifty report that the people have been swindled out of $580,000 in patent pavement contracts alone. Mr. Bourstell, one of the contractors, it is said, testified on oath that in order to get the Clinton street contract he had been compelled to purchase the influence of Wm. C. Kingsley with the ring by the payment of $150,000.

YACHTING.

The annual regatta of the Yacht Club will take place on the 20th of June; that of the Brooklyn Yacht Club on the 22d instant, and the Atlantic Club race will be sailed on the 18th. Pools on the international boat race are selling at the rate of 100 to 500 in favor of the English crew.

FATAL STABBING.

This morning Francis Mead, a well-known thief, attacked John Geary, a peaceable laborer, in Whitehall street, when the latter drew a knife and stabbed Mead fatally.

Lincoln as a Young Man.

The sketch of his boyhood might easily be extended to double its present length from the materials furnished in Lamon's book. But such extension is unnecessary. Already we can see what the young man Lincoln is going to be when he begins life for himself. He has acquired some facility with the pen; he is ready to mount the stump on the slighest provocation; he is known for his love of coarse stories and his gentle disposition; he is a cordial respecter of women, and foremost among the men of the settlements; he has long been a great reader, and possesses a remarkable memory; he has shown an eagerness of ambition quite at variance with some other traits of character; he detests manual labor, but studies books of law and politics half the night; he is a long and lean giant in stature, and able to take care of himself in any rough contest; he ardently loves his step-mother, and good-humoredly bears with his father; he can out-run, out-walk, out-leap, out-wrestle, out-lift the best of his acquaintances; necessity has made him self-reliant, and he is slow to give offence; he has no fondness for intoxicating liquor, can take a dram on occasion, but prefers to let it alone; he shows a seemingly shrew faculty of compliance, but after all is quite apt to have his own way in the end; he manifests considerable subtlety in adapting himself to the under currents of popular movement, and professedly studies for advancement as a leader in some unseen direction; he wishes to strike out for himself even now, but consents to wait three years till he is of age and comes to his majority, about the time the family moves into Illinois; he is sad and moody at odd spells, but has a blessed readiness of tact which enables him to hide his depression of spirit; he thirsts for knowledge, particularly of politics and history, and devours all the newspapers that come in his way; he thinks little about religion, but is a profound believer in the instincts of humanity, he is crafty and honest, moulds folks to his own desires by simple methods, is loved by all the women, and held in good fellowship by all men.—Review of Lamon's Life of Lincoln.

The Flower Clock.

The flowers of certain plants are so sensitive to the effect of light and heat that they open and close at the same time from day to day, marking the sun's altitude and inclination. This fact was made known by Linnæus, the great botanist, the basis of many experiments and observations, resulting in the arrangement called his "floral clock." It consisted of three divisions, containing flowers that open or close earlier or later, according to the state of the atmosphere. This was the "meteorological division," and indicated the state of the weather. A "tropical division," as it was called, contained flowers that marked sunrise and sunset; and a "horological division," consisting of flowers that open and close at fixed and invariable hours. It is a curious fact that there are twenty-four varieties of plants whose blossoms open successively at the different hours of the day and night. Looking over his list we find the day-lily opens at 5 o'clock a. m., and evening primrose at 5 o'clock p. m. Midnight belongs to the "cactus grandiflorus," or night blooming cereus, magnificent flower expands and diffuses a subtle perfume, soon after sunset, gradually unfolds and then closes until before day-dawn, when its strange mission is ended. The African marigold opens at seven o'clock in the evening and closes at four, if the weather be fair. If it does not open, rain is certain for the next day. It is said that the flowers of the water-lily close and sink into the water precisely at sunset, rise again to the surface and expand with sunrise. Pliny described the lotus of the Euphrates, which followed the same order; and the reverence which was paid by the Egyptians to the lotus is supposed by some to be from this association with the sacred sun. Flowers and fruit of the lotus are engraven on Eastern tombs and monuments, and adorn the heads of their sculptured deities. Besides the "floral clock," there is a floral calendar in which each month is marked by its own loyal flower.—Christian Weekly.

"GEN. GRANT never has ben beaten and he never will be."—Horace Greeley.

IN THE late Philadelphia Convention there were fifty colored delegates. How many will be in the conclave at Baltimore?

TO-DAY President Grant and Henry Wilson will be officially notified of their nominations by the President and Vice Presidents of the late Philadelphia Convention.

THE arrangements for the Boston Jubilee are progressing finely and it is confidently predicted that the affair will be the grandest musical occasion the world has ever witnessed.

THE EARLY release of Dr. Houard, the American political prisoner held by Spain, is most probable. He is illegally held, and our Government is determined that he shall be restored to his full liberty.

THE money wasted upon the Lincoln Club in its recent jamboree, is the subject of complaint among a few of the faithful. —Post.

We do not know that the "jamboree" cost the Post people any money.

GRANT the tanner, and Wilson the shoemaker, will now be the battle cry of the freedom shriekers.—Post.

Right, for once, neighbor! Remember "in the defense of our country there is nothing like leather."

THE strike for the eight hour system of labor without corresponding reduction of wages, is rapidly extending to all parts of the country. In New York thousands of workingmen are on a lockout over the question.

THE tax and tariff bill, which only requires the President's signature to become a law, makes a total reduction in the revenue of $58,057,259. Its best features are the reductions of internal taxtion, which are to their full extent a real relief to consumers.

THE Gazette never retracted its charge that General Cass was the author of the bill presented by General Negley in Congress making a raid upon the Treasury.—Post.

We permitted General Cass to do so over his own signature in these columns. What more satisfaction could he or his political trainers want?

MR. SUMNER, we would wager a big apple would give half of his earthly possessions to recall the words he used in his recent speech against the President, whereby he made Stanton utter a falsehood in his dying moments. Both his friends and enemies condemn the words, and Sumner cannot lift himself out of the pit he so thoroughly dug for himself.

THE aquatic world of rowers are in enthusiasm over the great fete accomplished by William Scharff, of this city, in the single scull race on the Schuylkill with Butler, of Boston. His time over the five miles course was the fastest on record, 32 minutes and 29 seconds. We confess to a good deal of pride over the result as it sustains our record of having produced some of the finest oarsmen in the world.

THE REPUBLICANS of Cambria county have placed the following good and strong ticket in nomination: Assembly, Hon. Samuel Henry; Register and Recorder, Samuel Kephart, of Wilmore; Commissioner, George Myers, of Galitzen township; Poor House Director, David Dibert, of Johnstown. The convention instructed for Hon. A. A. Barker for Congress. Mr. Henry represented the county last year in the Assembly, having turned the Democratic majority of the district into a Republican triumph.

DURING the recent session of the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia, the Evening Bulletin and the Press of that city developed an enterprise worthy of special note and commendation. Their reports were not only voluminous, but accurate and exceedingly spicy and well written. Frank Wells, Esq., of the former journal, had charge of the reporters gallery and issued the tickets of admission, a duty which he discharged faithfully, and to the satisfaction of all concerned.

AT Versailles the ungrateful French are soon to put on trial for his life the gallant Marshal Bazaine, on the charge of surrendering Metz and 160,000 French to the besieging German foe who numbered 40,000 more.

There are several precedents, not only for his trial, but for his conviction and punishment. Only five of the Marshals were ever brought to trial, and each of these was condemned and executed. These are De Retz, to whom the first Marshal's baton was given; he was hanged and burnt in 1440; the next was Biron, decapitated in 1602; De Marcillac and De Montmorency, executed in 1632, were the third and fourth and Ney, who was shot in December, 1815, was the last. High treason is the charge. Bazaine sets up the defense that his conduct was justifiable since had he held out starvation would have laid his whole army in death.

THE wonderful unanimity which marked the re-nomination of General Grant will go far to dispel any doubts which may have been entertained of our success, while it confused and discouraged the double enemy of our party. It was a singular and impressive sight to witness State after State casting its votes for our hero President, and to view the spontaneous outburst of approval from the throats of over four thousand persons assembled in the Academy of Music at Philadelphia. Whatever of disaffection may have marred the harmonious proceedings of other similar gatherings, there was none of it here. Cordial, hearty and prompt—not acquiesence merely in the result—but approval and endorsement of the work of the delegates at the National Convention is everywhere expressed, and thunders of applause greeted the announcement of the nomination of Grant and Wilson on Thursday last. This enthusiasm is a guaranty of certain victory for the cause of progressive loyal Republicanism.

THE LANCASTER Inquirer follows the lead of the Philadelphia Press in demanding the withdrawal of the State ticket put up by the Republican party. Thus far we have been wholly unable to see either the wit or the wisdom of the partisan journals advocating any such foolish thing. If it is their desire at heart to bring about the defeat of our ticket next October, they have certainly struck upon a very novel way to do so. If there was any fraud in making the nominations in the State Convention, if any solid objection could be urged against the candidates, or if those journalists raising the cry against them could succeed in convincing the public mind that they are really honest in their course and are not acting through personal spleen and malice, then we might pay some heed to their oft-repeated signals of danger. The Republican voters of Pennsylvania are ready for the fight under the leadership of the men now on the State ticket, and we demand no hauling down of the battle flag before a gun has been sounded.

PUBLIC men as a general thing pay too much court to newspaper editors, reporters and correspondents a compliment not appreciated by the profession; but it is certainly the best policy of all in public life to at least treat the quill drivers and makers of public opinion with ordinary respect and courtesy. The experienced journalist is never so happy as when he is hurling anathemas at his brethren in the business, or scalping a contemporary. Like man and wife they may delight in family quarrels but it is very unsafe for outsiders to interfere, if they have any regard for their own heads. There is beneath all the wrath and vindictiveness of newspapers, which are so frequently manifested, a deep current of sympathy for each other and a brotherly love which on provocation rapidly develops itself. He is deemed an unworthy member of the profession who will quietly see his brother snubbed and abused by the very men he has helped to make lofty in public places. Now, Vice President Colfax himself should know that it is better to have the good will of newspaper men than their enmity, for he has been a journalist himself and must know how clannish they are. It seems that he has courted the enmity of the small army of accomplished writers who hover about Washington by snubbing them on all occasions and by withholding from them the simple courtesy and politeness which in his dealings with others make him so conspicuous. These correspondents leagued together to kill him in the political arena, and were successful. They made a hard battle against him in advance of the assembling of the Convention and then followed up this advantange on the floor of that body, and in the secret caucus meetings of the several States, so effectually as to accomplish the triumph of Mr. Wilson. To their opposition more than to any other agency can Mr. Colfax attribute his defeat. The lesson taught may be a good one to all public officials, viz: if they do not love newspaper people they should have policy enough to respect the subtle power of the press, and the men who control it.

OUR REPUBLICAN CLUBS.

The members of these young organizations who attended the National Convention, returned on Saturday morning last, in good spirits, and much pleased with their excursion. Their stay in Philadelphia was marked with pleasant attentions from all whom they met, and they are particularly well pleased with the genial hosts of the Merchants and Girard hotels, where they made their headquarters. Their presence in Philadelphia was remarked by all who saw them, and their dignified bearing, and ardent expressions of enthusiasm for their party and its ticket, were the admiration of all. No doubt the presence of these patriotic clubs—including the Lincoln Club of Pittsburgh, the Pro Patria club of Harrisburgh, the Grant Club of Lancaster, the Allegheny Club of Allegheny City and others—contributed much toward the success which crowned the labors of the Convention and added to the enthusiasm which everywhere throughout the city prevailed. There is power in such well-conducted organizations which makes itself felt; and we hope, between now and October, that their numbers will be largely increased, and that every township in the State and country will complete its organization of a thorough, well drilled, wide awake Republican Club. We witnessed the force of these associations in 1860, when the patriotic hearts of the young men were stimulated to action by the universal enthusiasm they created. We know by such experience the power and efficacy of such movements, particularly on the younger members of the party; and we hope that efforts will be vigorously and promptly taken to strengthen and increase those already in existence, and to organize other clubs throughout the State. We noticed in Philadelphia that almost, if not altogether every ward in the city, has its Republican club and headquarters, where through thorough enrollment and organized effort the party is enabled to assert and hold its supremacy. Organize at once Republicans, and begin now the active preparations for a vigorous and wide awake campaign. Pennsylvania is to be the great battle ground of the canvass, and it behooves us all to step forward, sign the rolls, and declare at once for Grant, Wilson and victory for Republicanism. The two clubs already named, the Lincoln Club of Pittsburgh, and the Allegheny over the river, are eminently worthy of support, and every member of the party should contribute by personal effort or of his means, to strengthen them, and make them even more effective than they are. They will prove powerful auxilary aids to the labors of the county and State Committees, being always prepared to turn out a marching column on occasions of public meetings and receptions. The effect of these torch-light and day-light processions is electrical, and is probably the most effective way to kindle the patriotic fires, and draw the attention of the mass of the people to their political duties, both before and at the elections. Let the Allegheny and Lincoln Clubs be largely increased by the enrollment of every sound, loyal Republican in the county, and in this way we shall contribute more than in any other to swell the majority for our ticket in October and November.

MATTERS OF MOMENT.

ORGANIZE is the watchword all along the lines.

A CALCULATION shows that if the strike of the workingmen in New York is successful, the employers will have to either lose nine millions of dollars a year—or make it up off the people by raising prices.

THE Royal Band from England will not be present at the Boston Jubilee—the English authorities having revoked the permission granted the Band. Gilmore will have to look elsewhere for a supply of brass.

THE lords of the Democratic Household don't favor breaking up housekeeping and going to board with the "Liberals," for they justly fear that the fare would be too slim, and the society in nowise congenial.

METHODISTS will hear will hear with profound sorrow that George Alfred Townsend has paused in his drivel in advocacy of Free Trade to express his conviction that "the New York Book Concern was not wilfully mismanaged." How are the mighty fallen, if it has come to this that Methodism must receive the patronage of such a champion.

HOLLAND, by the death of its Prime Minister, Jan Rudolph Thorbecke, has lost one of the best statesmen known in its history. He was about seventy-six years of age and for the last quarter of a century has been the leading public man in the kingdom. He was a man of scholastic culture, sound in legal lore, a brilliant leader, and an author of some note in the fields of politics and jurisprudence.

THE correspondent of the Boston Globe, an independent journal, pays this compliment to the Philadelphia Convention: "The delegates are gathering slowly. All is harmonious. Every one comments on the high character of the several delegations. New York, Missouri, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts are especially complimented. There is a notable absence of the b'hoy element, generally found at popular gatherings. This Convention means business."

IT seems that Colfax in some way aroused the ire of the newspaper men and they formed a "syndicate" several months ago to slaughter him. Their influence in a large measure was instrumental in deciding the Vice Presidential nomination. Colfax was one of the craft in former times, but the journalists recently became impressed with the idea that he was supercilions toward them, and hence their opposition. It is just possible a little tinge of jealousy helped them to the conclusion. They toiled like beavers, at any rate, to accomplish their ends, and the story of their work, as detailed by the Philadelphia Press, is one of the most interesting records of the Convention.

COLFAX'S DEFEAT.

A Bit of History—The Opposition of the Correspondents to Colfax—How They Received His Defeat.

[From the Philadelphia Press.]

Everybody knows, or should know, that the majority of newspaper men present at the convention favored the nomination of Senator Wilson for the Vice Presidency. The Washington correspondents of the leading journals of the country, who came here in large force, were especially pronounced and enthusiastic for Wilson. The reason for their intense opposition to Colfax, who has been a newspaper man, and was once a great favorite with the correspondents, we give as it was stated to us by one of the craft:

In 1863, when Mr. Colfax was first elected Speaker of the House of Representatives, he was greatly aided by the newspaper correspondents at Washington, with whom he was then in high feather. After he was elected, they gave him an elegant dinner, at which Colfax expressed his great obligations to his brethren of the profession. In all his subsequent contests for the Speakership, Mr. Colfax had the support of his newspaper brethren stationed at the capital. When he was elected Vice President on the ticket with General Grant, for some reason best known to himself, Mr. Colfax suddenly became cold and indifferent toward his newspaper friends.

They assert that he steadily ignored them, and became absolutely supercilious. The class of men who represent the leading journals of the country at Washington are not to be ignored, and so they vowed that they would be equal with Mr. Colfax, and would "slaughter him," to quote their own phrase, upon the first opportunity that offerred. That opportunity presented itself yesterday, or rather after Mr. Colfax consented to become a candidate for Vice President.

HOW THE MATTER WAS ARRANGED.

Several months ago, indeed immediately after it became known that Mr. Colfax would be a candidate, a number of the Washington candidates went to Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts, and insisted that he should be a candidate, promising at the same time to go to work for him. Wilson, knowing what valuable allies they would prove, and having decided in his mind to be a candidate, accepted the suggestion and support of these gentlemen. Not satisfied with the influence they might be able to exert at Washington personally, and through their respective journals, they entered into correspondence with the leading members of the craft in the various States, with a view to creating public sentiment in favor of Senator Wilson and against Mr. Colfax. In this they were aided by a number of politicians who were hostile to Colfax. It is but just to Senator Wilson to say that he had nothing to do with this business, and was not even apprised of it. The newspaper-men simply told Wilson that they were bent upon defeating Colfax, and that they preferred him to any other candidate. They went about the accomplishment of their task in their own way, using such means as they thought would be the most effective.

COLFAX APPRISED OF IT.

Talking as boldly and as constantly as they did among all classes of men, it is not surpising that Mr. Colfax became apprised at an early day of the purpose of the newspaper men to labor for his defeat for the nomination. Whether he realized or conceded the full effect of this opposition is not known, but at all events he did not seem to pay any attention to it. The newspaper men worked with untiring energy. They were instant in season and out of season. In the Senate chamber, where Mr. Colfax sat as presiding officer, these busy bees carried on their warfare. They never allowed an opportunity for denouncing him to pass unimproved.

THE NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE.

When the National Convention assembled here, the majority of the Washington correspondents turned up as the representatives at the Convention of their respective journals. Here they organized what they called the "newspaper syndicate," and worked assiduously with the delegates to the Convention. It was nothing more than the coming together of the elements which had been operating, in detail, in different parts of the country against Colfax for the last three or four months. The head of the "syndicate" was Colonel William B. Shaw, one of the oldest of the Washington correspondents, and an untiring worker. We believe he was the first man who used the telegraph for special dispatches, which he sent to the New York Herald. He was warmly seconded by J. B. McCullagh, managing editor of the Missouri Democrat, well known as "Mack" of the Cincinnati Commercial. There is an esprit de corps among the Washington correspondents which does not exist in any other city among journalists. They have a sort of fellow feeling which makes them wondrous kind to each other, and which unites them on all occasions for the common defence! Shaw marshalled his forces with great dexterity, and no effort was spared to make votes for Wilson and against Colfax. The extensive acquaintance of these Washington correspondents with the politicians and public men of the country was of great service in the campaign of the "Syndicate" against Colfax. Engaged in the contest were men from the several States, each of whom had more or less influence with his delegation. This was wielded with a persistency and an energy that never tired.

THE "SYNDICATE" IN THE CONVENTION.

The stage of the Academy of Music, whereon was erected the tier of seats for the newspaper men, was the headquarters of the "Syndicate." Here they watched the proceedings of the convention with a keen observation peculiar to their profession. In addition to sending dispatches to their respective newspapers, they never lost sigh of the, to them, almost equally important task of "going for" their man. They had their runners constantly among the delegates, and wherever a doubtful man was found, or a man who had at all hesitated, he was taken in hand at once and labored with like a sinner on the anxious bench. Before the convention assembled yesterday the "Syndicate" had counted noses so closely that they felt confident that Senator Wilson would have a majority of all the delegates on the first ballot. They went around in the morning offering to take all the bets they could get that Wilson would be nominated on the first ballot, and many of them go away with numerous trophies in the shape of baskets of wine, new hats, boxes of cigars, and suits of clothes, not to speak of cash. Some men who insisted that the sentiment for Wilson was all "newspaper bluster" have lived to change their opinions.

THE SCENE AT THE NOMINATION.

The renomination of General Grant was a foregone conclusion with the journalists. They all knew it was coming, and hence took little interest in it. Some of them who are correspondents of afternoon papers telegraphed it as an accomplished fact long before it was officially announced by the President of the Convention. With regard to the ballots for the candidate for Vice President, there was the most intense interest.

It was rumored in the newspaper quarter that Kentucky and other delegations, instructed for favorite men in their respective States, would, after the first complementary vote, go for Colfax. Colonel Shaw, on the strength of this rumor, made a tour among the delegates of the doubtful States, and ascertained that it was not true, except as regarded Texas, which had already been conceded to Colfax. When the roll was called, and Alabama led off with twelve for Wilson and seven for Colfax, there was a concentrated yell set up by the "Syndicate," which attracted the attention of the President of the Convention, who evidently thought it was a sort of fire in the rear. The Massachusetts delegation, which sat immediately in front of the stage, caught up the cheers of the journalists, and communicated the enthusiasm to the delegates. The thing became infectious, and spread with astonishing rapidity. As one after another of the States pronounced for Wilson, the cheering and waving of hats, handkerchiefs, and sheets of foolscap became more general among the knights of the quill. When Illinois gave twenty-five for Wilson and seventeen for Colfax, "Mack" shouted to his friends in the rear, "We have got him on the level prairie on the run." This remark, of course, applied to Colfax. The solid twenty-six votes of Massachusetts was the signal for a genuine outburst of enthusiasm. At this moment grave doubts were entertained whether the rickety platform would stand the stress. "Clap with your hands, and don't stamp with your feet," shouted Shaw, "or you'll break down the stage."

Colonel Hinton, of the Boston Globe, who is a great "Labor Reform man," replied, "Henry Wilson's mechanics will build a new one, stronger and better." When Missouri was called for "Mack" gave notice that the boys should "get ready." "Give her three times three and a tiger, for she will give twenty-seven for Wilson," he said, and so she did. The "boys" were not only "ready," but willing. New York with her fifty-three votes for Colfax, was somewhat of a dampener upon the "Syndicate," but Ohio, which was called for soon after, with her thirty-three votes for Wilson, again aroused their enthusiasm. Old Pennsylvania was looked forward to with great interest, and when she was called out all hands were on their feet. Mr. McMichael was not allowed to announce the vote until the "Syndicate" started the convention to cheering, for it was known how her fifty-eight votes would be cast. When it was announced there was another round of applause. "Old Pig Iron is solid," said Adams, of the World, "against Schuyler, and I don't mind her tariff proclivities." "Don't hammer the stage," said Shaw, "or it will come down, and then where will we be?" When the result of the ballot was announced the wildest enthusiasm prevailed among the members of the "Syndicate."

THE TERROR AMONG THE LADY CORRESPONDENTS.

There were several ladies among the correspondents, representing different newspapers. As the unbounded enthusiasm of the "Syndicate" increased they became somewhat alarmed. Hats were thrown around promiscously, and any person who had one on his head was sure to have it mashed down over his eyes. The ladies looked on with a mingled feeling of admiration and fear, for we understand most of them were in favor of Wilson. But everything was conducted in the best of humor, and there was no ground for alarm.

THE "SYNDICATE" TELEGRAM.

As soon as Henry Wilson was nominated the members of the "Syndicate" united in a telegram to L. L. Crounse, the Washington correspondent of the New York Times, who was a Colfax man. Crounse sent a telegram here the night before, denouncing his brethren of the press who were for Wilson. This Was the reply:

PHILADELPHIA, June 6, 1872.

L. L. Crounse, Washington, D. C.:

We came, we saw, we conquered. Henry Wilson for Vice President. How about the "Syndicate?"

W. B. Shaw, J. McFarland, J. B. McCullough, U. H. Painter, R. J. Hinton, J. P. Foley, E. P. Brooks, George W. Adams, George Alfred Townsend, E. V. Smalley, Z. L. White, James R. Young, Henry L. Bridgman, et al., of the newspaper "Syndicate."

This telegram was sent at once by Hon. William Orton, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company, marked "D. H.," because, said the generous official, "I am always ready to serve the boys." And so ended the labors of the "Syndicate."

COVENANTERS.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—My attention was called to two articles which appeared lately in your paper; one, in your issue of May 18th, signed "Nemo," and the other in your issue of May 25th, over the signature of R. Crozier. The former of these productions seems to be a statement of what Covenanters generally believe, while the latter is evidently the production of more than one author, and written with a view to provoke controversy. I have no desire to engage in an argument with the person whose name is appended to the article in question, but, being a Covenanter myself, and heartily approving of the testimony emitted by the Reformed Presbyterian Church, as well as believing her position to be Scriptural, I wish to make an effort, however feeble it may be, in vindication of that body.

In the article to which I allude, Reformed Presbyterians are charged with having relinquished the attainments of their ancestors, and with having receded from a position which they formerly occupied. The grounds of this charge are the facts that, persons connecting themselves with the R. P. Church have not, for a number of years, been required to give their consent to what is known as the "Auchensaugh Bond," and also, that the synod of that church, did, at its last meeting in Pittsburgh, adopt and swear a Bond which was prepared by itself; thereby, consigning to oblivion those famous instruments the "National Covenant," and the "Solemn League."

Now, while we are ready to admit, that, Reformed Presbyterians, like other professing Christians, are allowing their conduct to be pervaded by a looseness which was not a characteristic of their forefathers; still I deny that, as a body, they have relinquished any of those principles for which their renowned predecessors contended. With regard to the "Auchensaugh Bond" I will only remark, that it has always been considered by the church in America, as a renewal of the covenants of former years, an assertion which will receive the assent of all who are acquainted with the historical past of the Reformed Presbyterian Testimony.

The authors of these articles which you have lately published, seem to think that the covenants entered into by the church and people of Scotland, should still be retained by the church as exponents of her faith and principles, and should on no account be superceded by any instrument prepared by the church in America.

Let me here state a fact with which all Covenanters are acquainted: The Church, in covenanting, has always framed her bond with especial reference to the times in which the act was performed. Thus, the bond of 1580 is directed especially against Popery; while the "Solemn League and Covenant," signed in 1638, is an explicit testimony against Prelacy, and was intended to secure a uniformity of religion throughout the British Isles.

It will be easily perceived, then, that a form of government prepared in any period of the Church's history, necessarily contains the peculiarities of that age;—condemns only the evils then in existence, and the heresies which have then appeared, and renders an entire change in its matter and verbiage, necessary to its being understood and accepted by a succeeding age.

And this change, thus rendered unavoidable, the synod of the R. P. Church has effected instruments written by John Craig and Alexander Henderson, to meet the exigencies of the times in which they lived, and suitable for the circumstances by which they were surrounded might, perhaps, give expression to the faith of the church to-day, but would certainly come far short of presenting to the world a statement of the position which she occupies, or of furnishing a testimony against the errors which she condemns.

Now, while we as Covenanters regard with veneration, the authors of these Covenants of former years, together with their brethern and friends, while we recognize as resting upon us, all moral obligations contained in those honored instruments; we also believe, that all these moral duties and obligations are, either expressedly or impliedly embodied in the form of Covenant which has lately been prepared; and that the authors of this Covenant are men who are entitled to our utmost confidence and respect. I for one, am glad to know, hereafter it will not be necessary to peruse a volume or two of uncouth verbiage, in order to discover how the manuals of our faith and worship were received by the church of Scotland. The great trouble with Mr. Crozier and his friends seems to be that they mix up the truth itself with some arrangement peculiar to the presentation of it; lacking the discernment necessary to make a proper distinction.

My wish is that all differences may soon be reconciled and that unity of sentiment may prevail in regard to this matter. "B."

THE British army, exclusive of commissioned officers, contains 177,678 men, of whom 117,701 are English, 44,092 Irish, and 15,885 Scotch. The proportion of Irish is very large in the infantry regiments of the line.

MISS BLANCHE'S ROSE.

[WRITTEN FOR DECORATION DAY.]

BRET HARTE'S LATEST LYRIC.

And you are the poet, and so you want something—what is it—a theme or fancy?
Something or other the muse won't grant
In your old poetical necromancy.
Why one-half you poets—you can't deny—
Don't know the muse when you chance to meet her,
But sit in your attics and mope and sigh;
For a faineant goddess to drop from the sky.
When flesh and blood may be standing by
Quite at your service should you but greet her.

What if I told you my own romance?
Women are poets if you so take them.
One-third poet—the rest what chance
Of man and marriage may choose to make them.
Give me ten minutes before you go—
Here at the window, we'll sit together
Watching the currents that ebb and flow,
Watching the world as it drifts below,
Up the hot avenue's dusty glow—
Isn't it pleasant, this bright June weather?

Well it was after the war broke out,
And I was a school girl, fresh from Paris.
Papa had contracts, and roamed about
And I—did nothing—for I was an heiress;
Packed some lint, now I think. Perhaps
Knitted some stockings—a dozen nearly.
Havelocks made for the soldiers' caps
Stood at fair tables and peddled traps
Quite at a profit. The shoulder straps
Thought I was pretty. Ah, thank you, really?

Still, it was stupid. Rataplan!
Those were the sounds of that battle summer,
Till the earth seemed a parchment, round and flat,
And every foot-fall tap of a drummer;
And day by day down the avenue went
Cavalry, infantry all altogether
Till my pitying angel one day sent
My fate in the shape of a regiment
That halted just as the day was spent
Here, at our door, in the bright June weather.

None of your dandy warriors they:
Men of the West, but where I know not;
Haggard and travel-stained, worn and gray,
With never a ribbon, or lace, or bow-knot;
And I opened the window, and leaning there
I felt in their presence the free wood's blowing;
My neck and shoulders, and arms were bare—
I did not dream they might think me fair—
But I had some flowers that night in my hair,
And here, in my bosom, a red rose glowing.

And I looked from the window along the line,
Dusty and dirty, and grim and solemn,
Till an eye like a bayonet flash met mine,
And a dark face grew from the darkening column;
And a quick flame leaped to my eyes and hair
Till cheeks and shoulders burned altogether.
And the next I found myself standing there
With my eyelids wet, and my cheeks less fair,
And the rose from my bosom tossed high in air,
Like a cloud-drop falling on plume and feather.

Then I drew back quickly—there came a cheer,
A rush of figures, a noise and tussle,—
And then it was over, and high and clear
My red rose bloomed on his gun's black muzzle.
Then far in the darkness a sharp voice cried.
And slowly and steadily, all together
Shoulder to shoulder, and side by side
Rising and falling, and swaying wide,
But beaming above them the rose—my pride—
They marched away in the twilight weather.

And I leaned from my window and watched my rose
Tossed on the waves of the surging column,
Warmed from above in the sunset glows—
Borne from below by an impulse solemn.
Then I shut the window. I heard no more
Of my soldier friend, my flower neither,
But lived my life as I did before;
I did not go as a nurse to the war—
Sick folks to me are a dreadful bore,
So I didn't go to the hospitals either.

You smile, O poet, and what do you?
You lean from the windows, and watch Life's column
Tramping and struggling through dust and dew,
Filled with its purpose grave and solemn;
And an act, a gesture, a face—who knows?
Touches your fancy to thrill and haunt you,
And you pluck from your bosom the verse that grows,
And down it flies, like my red, red rose,
And you sit and dream as away it goes
And think that your duty is done—now don't you?

I know your answer. I'm not yet through:
Look at the photograph—"In the trenches"—
That dead man in the coat of blue
Holds a withered rose in his hand. That clenches
Nothing! Except that the sun paints true
And a woman sometimes is prophetic-minded,
And that's my romance. And, poet, you
Take it and mould it to suit your view,
And who knows but you may find it too
Come to your heart once more as mine did.

Sickness of Forty Years' Duration Cured.

The cure related below is one of a very remarkable kind, on account of its long duration, and is well worthy of the attention of all those who may be afflicted with chronic disease of any kind, showing clearly that all such cases can be cured. It is that of Jacob Wagner, a respectable farmer, aged 63 years, of New Sewickley township, who has been in gradually failing health for a period of about forty years. The disease manifested itself by a continued cough and a wasting state of health, which, about the beginning of last October, culminated in an attack which showed that the lungs were becoming seriously affected. Mr. Wagner, in this state of his case, applied to Dr. Keyser, of this city, who, by a system of medicine of a restorative kind, has completely cured him and restored him to a state of health to which he has been a stranger for many long and weary years. His cure is thorough and complete, and evinces an amount of skill and perseverance in the treatment of such cases, by Dr. Keyser, which is rarely if ever attained in a life time. The cure was chiefly effected by Dr. Keyser's Lung Cure, and is another of the many instances of the wonderful restorative power of that medicine, in the cure of every disease of long standing, especially those in which the pulmonary organs and the blood are deteriorated.

Dr. Keyser's office is at 167 Liberty street, in the rear of his Drug Store, from 10 A. M. until 1 P. M., and from 3 until 6 P. M., and on Saturday's at night.

A treatise on Lung Diseases sent wherever it is wanted.

CAUSELESS DEPRESSION.

This expression is often used, but it is manifestly absurd. Gloom and melancholy are not spontaneous. They are unnatural mental conditions and usually have corresponding causes. If there is no apparent reason for despondency, it is a symptom of physical disease. In nine cases out of ten the stomach, the liver and the bowels are responsible for the cloud which rests upon the brain. In all such cases immediate and permanent relief may be obtained by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. If the digestive organs are weak an invigorant is necessary; if the liver is disordered an alterative is required; if the bowels are constipated or irregular a gentle aperient is needed. In that famous vegetable remedy these three medicinal properties are commingled with several others of a scarcely less important character, and hence it speedily cures every species of hypochondria arising from material causes, by removing the causes themselves.

In the summer, when disorders of the stomach and bowels, bilious complaints and all diseases which affect the assimilating and secretive organs are especially prevalent, the importance of having this invaluable tonic, alterative and corrective in every dwelling, and within the reach of all who travel by land or water, cannot be overestimated. As it is a staple article throughout the country it would be next to impossible to find a settlement, near or remote, unprovided with a stock of this vegetable tonic.

DAILY GAZETTE.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, June 8, 1872.

The working of the money market during the past week has developed very little that is novel or interesting. Money grows more abundant as the weather increases in heat, and the statement made by the GAZETTE six weeks ago that money by the first of July would be superabundant is already verified. The tendency also is to still greater ease. Many of our operators are reducing, and in some instances paying off their obligations, and a number of foreign capitalists, particularly those who read this paper, are becoming alive to the fact that there is no safer place for investments than this city, and are are taking advantage of the lately acquired knowledge by buying up Pittsburgh securities and acceptances. In Philadelphia where there is most always an overplus of capital, they have been in the habit of looking to New York for investments. Now, through the instrumentality of some of the rising young men here, who have persistently called their attention to the many natural advantages possessed by this locality, the solidity of its business community, and the energy and industry of the people, they are sending here for notes, stocks and bonds; and although it cannot be expected that the whole channel will be directed west, there is no doubt that Pittsburgh is to hereafter receive a fair share of her sister city's immense wealth towards furthering the developement of the mineral resources and keeping the machinery and labor here actively employed. In doing this, Philadelphia will not only benefit this city, but also add to her own wealth; instead of building up a great seaport rival, who has nothing in common with her, she will be nourishing and developing a little sister who in time, with iron arms and nerves of steel, will do more towards making her the great metropolis of the country than all the rest of the cities east, even if they have the will, can possibly accomplish in her behalf.

Gold is still fluctuating between 114 and 114¼. So far there is nothing to cause a change in what has already been said by this paper in regard to the premium on gold.

There is nothing worth reporting in local stocks. In real estate there is no lull. Property in this neighborhood continues to look up, and large lots and small ones meet with ready sale wherever offered at fair prices and on reasonable terms.

NEW YORK, June 8, 1875.

Gold opened at 114, sold down to 113⅞, and closed steady at 114⅛@114¼. Carrying rates 1@4. Clearings $76,000,000. Governments dull and steady and ⅛ lower. State bonds dull. Money easy at 4@5. Stocks opened steady, but have been very dull all day, with a general decline of ¼@⅜. During the day Erie fell 2¼. The extreme dullness is owing to the absence of a large number of brokers at the races. The market closed steady.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, June 8, 1872.

The general markets have been quiet during the past week, though trade generally is fair, all that can be expected at this season of the year; the demand for most of the leading commodities is somewhat restricted, being confined almost wholly to supplying immediate wants, while in regard to values there have been no changes not previously noted. Trade in Butter continues very dull, and there is not much prospect of an early improvement; prime to choice may now be quoted at 14 to 16, and medium to good 10 to 12, and even at the reduced prices the supply is largely in excess of the demand. The eastern markets, like our own, are overstocked, and there, as here, prices rule low; we saw an account sales from New York to-day, showing sales at 12 to 14 cts, which by the time freights and commissions are taken out will leave little or nothing for the shipper. It is probable, however, that the receipts at all points will commence to fall off soon, but no material improvement in prices can reasonably be expected. Eggs are in rather better supply, and the market is a shade easier; 18 cts is generally regarded as the ruling quotation, but we hear some few sales having been made, on Friday, at 17 cts. Dried Fruits are becoming dull and neglected, which is owing to the abundance of green truck, berries, etc. etc., and the season is about over; the supply of apples is about exhausted, but the indications are that there will be a considerable quantity of peaches carried over until next winter. Flour continues quiet and unchanged, and the situation, present and prospective, is unsatisfactory to dealers; all the leading markets are dull, and there has been a general decline all over the country within the past ten days; yet in view of the fact that the reports in regard to the wheat crop generally, are unfavorable, the indications are that while present prices may not be maintained, flour is likely to rule considerably higher in 1872 than it was in 1871. It is generally conceded at the present time that the yield of Winter wheat will fall considerably below an average, and, in consequence, a good deal depends on how the Spring wheat crop turns out; if there should be an average yield of the latter, it will of course, have its effect in lowering the price of flour, but if it, too, should turn out badly, not only will present prices of flour be maintained, but a still further advance would not be improbable. The latest advices generally are favorable for a good yield of Spring wheat, and the crops in Europe are said to be looking better. There is little or nothing doing in wheat in our market at present, and it is difficult to give quotations in the absence of sales; red is quoted nominally at $1,95 to $2, and white it worth little if any more. Oats continue dull, but unchanged; 52 to 53 cts for mixed to white. Corn is also dull and drooping; there was a sale of Shelled the other day at 62, but this is considered below the market, and the presumption is that it was a forced sale. Rye is also dull, but nominally unchanged, $1,00 to $1,05. The grocery market is quiet, and devoid of any new features not already noted. Hay continues dull and weak, and the market is considerably overstocked; we continue to quote baled at $25 to $28, as to quality. Potatoes are being sold at all kinds of prices; so anxious are dealers generally to realize, that they are taking just whatever they can get; sales have been made within the past few days at 25 to 45 cents per bushel.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

CENTRAL STOCK YARDS, EAST LIBERTY, SATURDAY, June 8, 1872.

CATTLE.

Trade has been remarkably active this week, the sales in the aggregate having been unusually large, and prices as compared with last week are 15 to 25 cents per cwt. higher. The arrivals both of through and local stock were large, but with an increased demand, caused by the attendance of an unusually large number of buyers, the market, as already noted, was lively, everything offering meeting with ready sale, and that, too, at full prices; the sales this week were larger than during any preceding week for several months, and the commission men reported the market, all things considered, the best of the season, if not this year. In to addition the regular delegations from New York and Philadelphia, there was an unusually large number of country buyers on hand, and their appearance was not without its effect on trade, as it stimulated competition, and holders, in consequence, were enabled to close out readily; buyers realizing the situation, that the demand was fully up, if not in excess of the supply, that there was no inducement to hold back, pitched in and bought freely, and that, too, at the advance already noted, and everything almost was sold upon arrival.

Prime to extra shipping steers may be quoted at 6¾ to 7c; fancy at 7⅛ to 7¼, medium to good, 6¼ to 6¾, and common to fair, 5¼ to 6. There was one bunch of very fine Southern Ohio steers sold at 7¼, and this we believe, was the only sale made at that figure. Very few stock cattle offering, and there is not much inquiry; we continue to quote at 4¾ to 5¼, as to quality and condition.

Following embraces a pretty full report of the sales up until noon to-day:

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

The market was scarcely as strong yesterday and to-day as it was early in the week, for which there were several causes, two of which are as follows: 1st. The arrivals turned out larger than anticipated: and, 2nd, the advices from New York were unfavorable; prices, however, are without quotable change, and no material or permanent decline, for the present, is anticipated. Good Ohio and Pennsylvania sheep may be quoted as follows: Extra 100 lbs, 6¾c; prime 90 to 95 lbs, 6½c to 6⅝c; good 80 to 85 lbs, 6 to 6¼c; and 70 to 75 lbs, 5⅛ to 5¾c. Western sheep 50 to 75 cts per cwt below the above quotations.

George Perritte, a well known Washington county dealer, sold 2,304 during the week, all to one buyer, Henry Erisman, at an average of five dollars and forty-five cents per head. One of the finest droves on sale was from Washington county, fed and raised by John Haines, a well known sheep grower of that county; the entire 510 head averaged 105 lbs, and brought 5⅛ cts at home, and Mr. Perritte was the purchaser, and he in turn sold to Erisman.

HOGS.

The hog market has been rather sluggish all week, owing in part to difficulty in obtaining cars, but there has been no quotable change in prices since the date of our last report. Philadelphia hogs are still quoted at $,50 to $4,60, and Yorkers at $4,15 to $4,30.

PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, June 8, 1872.

Business has been moderately active during the past week, though not what it ought to be, or usually is, at this particular time; however, while there is an absence of excitement, and Duquesne Way, as compared with former years, presents a very dull appearance, yet after all, there is as much actual, legitimate business now as there was then; this is evident from the fact that our receipts and shipments are fully up to, if not in excess, of former years. It is true, there is still considerable complaint being made in regard to small margins, but so there was then; but there is some consolation in the fact that this complaint is not confined to Pittsburgh alone; and there is some satisfaction in knowing that Cleveland, Philadelphia, and all other refining centres, have to work on just as small margins as Pittsburgh refiners, while in many respects we enjoy advantages which they do not; and there is every reason to believe that Pittsburgh will continue to be the great refining mart of the country.

Refined closes weaker, and as compared with Wednesday and Thursday, there has been a sharp decline: spot quoted at 22¾c; June, 23; July, 23⅜c; August, 23¾. No sales reported. Crude is also weak and lower, being quoted to-day at $4,00.

Oil Barrels dull and weak, though without quotable change; $1,80 bid for city, and $1,82 asked; country barrels 10 cts less.

Receipts of crude this week, 28,507; bbls last week, 26,718; January 1st to date, 445,518; same time last year, 406,380; exports of refined this week, 18,032; last week, 15,809; January 1st to date, 232,475; same time last year, 224,834.

Wool Markets.

NEW YORK.—The Shipping List of the 8th says: The settlement of the tariff question causes a better feeling, and there has been more inquiry from Manufacturers, though the business done has not been large. The views of holders are still above those of buyers, though, in some cases, some lots have been closed at prices under our quotations. Cape has met with a fair inquiry, and we understand that 40 cents cash, has been refused for large lots. South American Sheep Skins are in more demand, but the transactions are as yet small. The new clip Domestic still comes forward very slowly, and, in view of the very high prices asked by the Farmers, trade is very likely to be greatly restricted, as Manufacturers do not care to buy when Foreign can be had at nearly one-half less than the present asking prices for Domestic. There is scarcely any Fleece here, the market, in fact, being bare of nearly all kinds. The sales are 20,000 lbs. Fleece at 70@75 cts; 8,000 lbs Black Scoured, 97c; 1,500 lbs. unwashed Medium, 56c; 1,000 lbs. do. Medium and Coarse, 48c; 35,000 lbs. Ohio and Western Fleece, 77½c; 12,000 lbs. Illinois, 70c; 18,500 lbs. Fall clip California, 30@36c; 7,000 lbs. unmerchantable State, 40,000 lbs. scoured, 5,000 lbs. Texas, 20,000 lbs. California Pulled, and 4,000 lbs. do Fall clipped, on private terms. By auction, 35 bales damaged Cape sold at 34@36 cts, cash.

PHILADELPHIA.—There is more doing, and prices are rather firmer. NEW YORK, June 8.—In the dry goods market there is a slow sale in every kind, with the exception of the best brands; in bags, which move freely west to supply the grain trade, the advance is rapidly paid. RIVER NEWS.

The river was stationary on Saturday, but commenced to rise again yesterday, and last evening the marks indicated 4 feet 9 inches. The weather was oppressively hot, with a shower of rain in the afternoon, and the indications in the evening were favorable for more. The rise yesterday was entirely unexpected, as on Saturday the advices were not regarded favorable for water, and river men were discouraged.

The Argosy is the only arrival from below. The Julia No. 2, from Zanesville, is due to-day.

The Brill departed for Nashville last evening, with a moderate trip; she will no doubt get all she wants below.

The Juniata, Capt. C. L. Brennan, is announced to take her departure for Cincinnati to-day, and passengers and shippers should bear this in mind. Although a large side-wheeler, she is of light draft, and no trouble need be anticipated by low water.

The Messenger at last accounts was laid up at Marietta, and her pilots Wm. Gosney and Wm. Hall have returned to Cincinnati.

The John A. Wood with a tow of 22 empty barges, passed Cincinnati on Friday, enroute for this port. E. H. Williamson and James Hamilton are her pilots.

Capt. J. T. Russell is piloting on the J. W. Garrett.

The West Virginia, from Geneva, arrived and departed as usual.

The Coal Bluff was sold by the United States Marshal on Saturday, to Messrs. Porter & Co., brick manufacturers, at New Cumberland, West Virginia, for $5,000. She will be employed by her owners in towing brick.

The Mollie Ebert, Capt. G. W. Ebert, is, as will be seen by card, announced for St Louis forthwith. Of course the veteran steamboat clerk Standish Peppard, is in charge of the office. Both Mr. Peppard and Capt. Ebert are turning grey in the service.

—The Imperial sunk the barge Madison near Canton, Mo., during a storm Sunday morning. She was trying to make a landing at the time, and the wind blew her out into the river, striking the barge against a snag and sinking it in ten feet of water. Protest has been entered. The barge belonged to J. Robinson, of Dubuque, and contained 12,500 bushels of bulk corn, which she got at Keokuk and was taking through to New Orleans.

—The Evansville Journal of Tuesday says: Among the Minneola's passengers was the veteran pilot, David Hiner, en route to Mound City, where his son-in-law has been appointed to the command of the naval station. The white-haired veteran is remarkably well preserved for a gentleman of his age, and was warmly greeted by many old friends here.

—The Vicksburg Times says: The Carrie Williams, a small screw propeller which had the cabin of Romie Wheeler put on her last fall, has been lying under the point opposite the National Cemetery for several months. From the number of chickens and cattle around the boat and neighboring grove, we would judge that she is doing about as well as some of the crafts which have been kept red-hot all winter.

—The Red River Navigation Company are about to build a boat to run between Shreveport and Loggy Bayou, and, if successful in building a good trade, other steamers will be constructed. Nearly every merchant and planter between the above points has taken stock in the above company.

—The Arkansas river is falling as far down as Swan Lake Landing, but is still bank full and slightly over in some places. The damage by high water along the lower end of the river will likely reduce the yield of cotton some five or six thousand bales.

—The Comet left the ore pile for New Albany and Pittsburgh, on Tuesday, with 800 tons ore and 100 tons of fire clay. The next boat to leave will be the Coal Hill. Ore is coming in too slowly for the owners of steamers and barges.

—Captain John Brooks, of St. Louis, a well known steamboatman, has been missing for about three weeks. He was in good health, and his habits regular, and no cause can be assigned for his sudden disappearance.

—The Gasconade, at St. Louis, has been released from the U. S. Marshal's grasp, and will go on the docks to repair damages sustained in the Gasconade river, where she was aground one year.

—Captain Gould has named his St. Louis and Naples packet, Fannie Keener, in honor of the beautiful and accomplished lady of Naples, the daughter of Mr. Thomas Keener.

—Billy Haines, pilot of the Mary Boyd, took the Shannon from Memphis to New Orleans, for which he gets $200, and $8 per day for all time over fourteen days.

—The steamer Kellogg, bound from New Orleans to St. Louis, broke both chains, fore and aft, Monday, and was compelled to return to New Orleans to go on the docks.

—It is believed that St. Louis will soon be favored with a weekly good passenger boat in the Tennessee river.

—Captain Morton, an old steamboat builder, contemplates the establishment of a ship-yard at Portsmouth.

—There were 435 arrivals at Cairo during the month of May.

HOME NEWS.

Feed Boy Wanted.—Inquire at our Press Room between the hours of five and ten o'clock this evening.

Railroad Accident.

On last Friday night the Erie and Youngstown Express, which is due here at 11:17 P. M., while about one mile north of Jamestown, struck a man who was standing upon the track. The train was immediately stopped and the man was picked up in an insensible condition and taken to Jamestown, where a physician was procured, who expressed the opinion that the man was fatally injured. His skull was fractured, and he had sustained other severe injuries. No one was able to identify the man, and it is thought he was a "tramp."

Runover Accident.

About six o'clock on Saturday evening, a boy named Gibbs, eight years of age, fell off a Penn street car on Butler street, near Thirty-eight street. Just as he fell to the ground a carriage drawn by two horses was passing, and before he could get out of the way, the vehicle passed over him fracturing his leg, just above the ankle. He also sustained other injuries. He was removed to the office of Dr. Clarke, where his wounds were attended to and his leg set. Yesterday morning he was taken to the residence of his parents on Willow street.

Coroner's Inquest.

Acting Coroner McMasters yesterday held an inquest on the body of William Shelenberger, who was killed at the Outer Depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad, on Saturday night. The deceased, who is a lad of about seventeen years of age, was a fireman in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad, but on Saturday night was not on duty. He visited some of his friends on another engine to that on which he is employed, and while "skylarking" fell on the track and the wheels passed over him. The jury rendered a verdict that he came to his death from his own carelessness. The remains were taken to his parent's residence in Bloomfield, Sixteenth ward.

Fire in East Liberty.

About two o'clock yesterday morning the armory of the Ardary Zouaves on Highland avenue, about a block from Penn avenue, was observed by a passer by, to be on fire. An alarm was at once raised, and a large number of persons residing in the neighborhood turned out of their beds and went to the scene of the fire. No engines or hose made their appearance and the building was entirely consumed. Most of the property in the building was saved. The flames evidently had their beginning in the centre of the floor, and it is supposed were originated by an incendiary. The building was of one story, and the damage is estimated at about $500, whether covered by insurance or not has not been ascertained.

Cutting Affray.

Between 11 and 12 o'clock on Saturday night a general disturbance occurred in Diamond alley, in the course of which one of those engaged in the melee was seriously cut. It appears that the man who was thus injured was put out of Lutz's saloon and that upon the sidewalk he ran against a passer by, who struck him, a fight ensued and the friends of both parties appear to have taken a hand in it. In the course of the disturbance the young man, who was the cause of it, was cut three times in the arm, one of his cuts being of a serious nature. He was taken to a drug store and his wounds were dressed. His name could not be learned but it is said he drives an ice wagon for Scott & Co.

Too Trusting by Half.

Information was received at the Mayor's office last night of a robbery which was perpetrated under very peculiar circumstances, illustrating the danger of trusting to the honesty, even of a friend. At the corner of Smithfield street and Strawberry alley may be found the drug store of L. Brehm. The clerk in charge of the store was yesterday visited by an old friend. After spending some time in conversation the clerk's stomach warned him of a vacuum and he begged his old friend to be kind enough to watch the store while he went and took a meal. The friend was agreeable and the clerk went for his food. On his return he was surprised to find that his friend had disappeared and still more surprised when he discovered that the money drawer had been robbed of $50 and that certain little things had been taken from the pockets of a suit of clothes which was hanging up in the rear of the store. Of course he does not accuse his friend (?) of being the thief, but he thinks it looks a little suspicious.

Amusements.

PITTSBURGH OPERA HOUSE.—The justly celebrated Manning's Minstrels will give the first of a week's entertainment here this evening. This troupe, under the splendid management of the prince of comedians, Billy Manning, have acquired a reputation for the brilliancy of their performances that is unexcelled by any of the burnt cork profession. The troupe is accompanied by a splendid vocal quintette and orchestra, the music of which is, by no means, the least attractive feature of the performances.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—This evening and all of this week, lovers of delightful entertainments, will have an opportunity fully to satisfy their desires in that direction by the splendid entertainments which Carncross & Dixey's Minstrels alone can give. Their brilliant array of stars is, in itself, a sufficient attraction to fill the house, as it doubtless will. The troupe is accompanied by Moran, Eugene and Unsworth, performers who are acknowledged to be at the head of their profession.

Obituary.

Early on Friday morning the reaper, Death, visited the household of Mary A. and William Lewis and removed with his remorseless scythe their young and much loved daughter Annie. The deceased young lady was in the 18th year of her age, and her character had emerged from the condition of girlhood into womanly grace and intelligence. She was of a kind and amiable disposition and had won the love and esteem of a large circle of friends, outside of those to whom she was endeared by the ties of relationship. At an early age she evinced an unusual degree of thoughtfulness upon the subject of religion and was at the time of her decease a member of the Second Methodist Church. She was also a member of Fidelity Chapter of the Good Templars, the members of which, in regalia, filled fourteen carriages at her funeral yesterday. The burial service was celebrated at her parents' residence by the Rev. Henry Thomas, of the Congregationalist Church, and the last sad rites at the grave were conducted by the Rev. J. D. Herr, the pastor of the church to which she belonged. The burial services peculiar to the Good Templars were also performed at the grave. The early death of this promising young Christian has carried deep sorrow not only to the hearts of her parents and relatives, but also to many acquaintances who will miss her from among them.

Summer Retreat—Lake House, Stoneboro.

Any of our citizens who would like to find a delightful summer retreat which they can reach by rail in a few hour's ride through a charming intermediate country, should by all means visit Stoneboro in Mercer county, Penn'a., situated midway between Jamestown and Franklin. Stoneboro is a small but very neat and orderly village. The Lake House is a spacious, clean, well kept hotel. Mr. Samuel Rosenburg, the proprietor, is an experienced, capable and very obliging host, who delights to please his guests by the most assiduous attention to all their wants. Back of the town is a range of upland spotted with fine farms. In front, on the north side lies Sandy Lake, one of the most beautiful sheets of water in the State, large enough for a sailing yacht to spread its sails and flit before the wind, or any number of row-boats, deep enough for a man-of-war, and pure as a mountain spring, abounding with finny prey for the angler; skirting this lake, on the further shore is a fine stretch of natural forest in its primal grandeur, with a mineral or medicinal spring embowered therein, but a short walk from the shore. We speak thus of Stoneboro, its lake and its hotel, from personal observation, and can commend all as well worthy of a visit from health and pleasure seekers. The charges are very moderate.

A PRACTICAL JOKE was played on a gentleman of the Sixth ward last week which came near bearing fearful fruit. It was only the other day that he came to himself, and then he swore that he would have been off his jamboree a week sooner if his tormentors had left him alone.

THE CONCERT given by Mr. Joseph Parry at the 2d Avenue Welsh Presbyterian Church, on Saturday night, was one of the grandest musical events of the season. The gentleman endeavored to do his best, and from the first sound of his rich, full and clear notes, he carried his audience with him. He is a finished artiste, and worthy all the praise that has been bestowed upon him elsewhere. His support was very good throughout. We sincerely trust that the great vocalist and musician may be prevailed upon to revisit our city, to furnish one of his exceedingly worthy entertainments to the public at large.

IF MAYOR BLACKMORE and the Police Committee want to receive the thanks of all respectable citizens who travel Liberty street, below Market, they will detail a policeman to attend to the drivers of express wagons who make their headquarters at the corner of Fifth avenue and Liberty street. Ladies who do not wish to hear language unfit for the lowest of the low, have to go a square around these men so as to not be insulted or their modesty shocked. They have no decency, don't care what they say, or who hears them. Their conversation at times is so disgusting and shameful that, dogs if they knew what they were saying, would drop their tails and run. Will the Mayor see to it?

EMANCIPATION JUBILEE.

The Colored People Preparing—Organization for the Street Parade—Officers Selected.

The colored people of Allegheny county are making great preparations for the celebration in memory of their emancipation and enfranchisement, which takes place on Tuesday the 18th of June.

These two great events in their history are now commemorated, generally, upon some selected day in summer, because of the extreme cold and wintry weather usually prevailing in the Northern States at the season of the year which marked the change in their social and political condition.

The emancipation proclamation issued by the immortal President Lincoln on the 1st of January, 1863, changed their social condition. The ratification of the XVth Amendment, which was proclaimed by our hero-President on the 30th of March, 1870, changed their political condition and gave them the franchises of freemen.

In Allegheny, great enthusiasm has been awakened and a large number of the real working men will march in the grand procession. Clubs are being organized in the several wards and townships on the North Side by Messrs. J. W. Jenkins, Philip Peterson, Alex. Stevenson, J. W. Terry, John Wilson and others. At the great mass meeting held last Thursday evening in Baptist Hall, a brass band, composed of young colored men from East Liberty, was present, and after performing some excellent pieces of music, speeches were made by S. A. Neale and Rev. S. W. Terry, upon the nominations of the National Convention at Philadelphia. At every mention of the honored names of President Grant and Henry Wilson, the wildest enthusiasm and cheering prevailed.

The meeting then elected by marking, three candidates having been proposed, Mr. Harrison Taylor as Chief Marshal of the Allegheny division. The following persons will act as staff officers and aids:

Chief Marshal—Harrison Taylor.
Chief Aid—Lewis Costly.
Staff—Wm. Kearney, John W. Writ, Joseph H. Smith, Thomas H. Johnson and Richard Dixon.
Aids—John Gilkerson, Jacob Taylor, John Smith, William Cuff, Charles Jenkins, and Geo. Jackson.
Chief Flag Bearer—John Bronson.
Orderlies—Thos. Taylor and Beverly Gilkerson.

The route of parade and orders of the Chief Marshal may be found in the GAZETTE of June 8th.

A large meeting was held at Sewickley on the evening of June 7th. John Howard, presided as Chairman, and William H. Stockton, as Secretary. Wm. Warfield was elected as Chief Marshall; A. Fields flag bearer, and Mr. Logan was appointed to take charge of the banner.

New Brighton, Bridgewater and Beaver delegations will be escorted to Allegheny by the Sewickley delegation. The Central Committee are making every effort to have everything pass off pleasantly on the 18th. Their Honors, Mayors Blackmore and Callow will be waited upon by special committees and escorts of policemen will be solicited to keep order along the route and at the grove. The Avery Guards, under Captain Grafton Bowie, will lead the procession and some fine military evolutions may be looked for on the route of parade.

The Last of that Eagle.

Some time ago we were fortunate enough to become the purchaser, from a shrewd boy, of an American eagle, or as some pretenders to ornithogical knowledge falsely called him, a hawk. We fed that noble bird and cared for him as if he were a tender, noble child thrown for protection on our charity. He proved ungrateful, however, and in return for all our kindness in providing him with rats and cats and young chickens and dainty beef steak by the pound, day in and day out, he fearfully stained the proud escutcheon of the Falcon family and bit a slice out of the hand that fed him. We endeavored to dispose of the ungrateful bird at once, growing disgusted with him and forgetting all about the Fourth of July, and dropping our patriotism for the time being, we strolled around town to dispose of him cheap. We had almost convinced Maj. Burnell to take him into the happy family of the museum, but after that shrewd showman saw him tear a three year old cat into ribbons and swallow all of poor tabby, save the skin, he concluded that there would not be very much happiness in that cage if Mr. Eagle were introduced. He pronounced the noble bird a fraud, a hypocrite, too much entirely on the prey to be trusted. We then endeavored our sweetest to shut the optical orbs of manager Beamer by trying in the blandest manner possible to wheedle him into the belief that the effect would be stunning if he were to introduce the bird in all the sensational plays. We told him to tie him to the proud American flag, cast red pepper in his eyes to make him flop and screech, then throw flag and eagle on the stage and our word for it the patriotic novelty would make him a fortune. He couldn't see it, however, and no sale was made. In our efforts to get rid of this bird we waxed impatient and came to the determination to kill him and stuff his carcass, and then tell a frightful story about his being captured in the desolate wilds of Colorado, after carrying away more than a hundred infants, three of which he devoured each day to satisfy his voracious appetite. With such a legend pinned to his feathers we thought the stuffed eagle would command a rare good price even from Burnell who refused to touch him in the heyday of life, at least we could have had him put in that space on the top of a church spire. A better thought, however, struck us and it was a ten strike for the eagle if he only knew it. We resolved to do a generous thing so that our people might rise up and call us blessed. We donated the noble bird to the Allegheny Park Commission, and in a patriotic strain we begged our friend, the Secretary, Mr. Joe. Oxley to treat him with that high respect and consideration due from an American citizen to the glorious eagle. We never received a vote of thanks for the munificent donation, and while we believe it, we would not like to say it out, that, had the worthy Secretary been less of the politician he would have sent the bird right back to us, but he had a record for loyalty to sustain and did not dare deprive the people of the pleasure of owning a real live emblem of freedom. So he kept him. Since he had him a pet cat went through the bird, not however in the accepted interpretation of the words, a tame pigeon beloved by the Secretary's family had his head pulled away from his shoulders, a little child had an arm nearly torn away and even Mr. Oxley himself has carried his good right hand in a leather sling for weeks at a time owing to the voracious disposition of the strong and wicked bird. Mr. Oxley was a candidate for office before the recent Republican Convention and was defeated. The bird died from grief since the great party had gone back on his patriotic owner, and thus passed away silently and sweetly the eagle that should to-day have been soaring proudly at the end of a string in the beautiful and romantic common grounds of Allegheny.

From George Woods, L. L. D., President Western University of Pennsylvania.

Having carefully examined D. Munson's Copper Tubular Lightning Rod, I most cheerfully say I consider it superior to any rod I have before seen. The metal has a high conducting power; the tubular form gives it large conducting surface; and with the flanges, great strength—and the insulators are excellent. It must, I think, take the place of all other rods.

THE MINERAL POINT MURDER.

Moore and His Wife Traced to Mineral Point—Her Trunk Identified—She is Known to Have Had Money.

The trial of Michael Moore for the murder of his wife at Mineral Point was continued on Friday and a good deal of important testimony was heard. The evidence taken was mainly for the purpose of showing that the prisoner and the murdered woman arrived at Mineral Point in company.

E. W. Eisenbise, sworn—I am a conductor on the Pennsylvania railroad, on mail train, I start east from Pittsburgh to Altoona, west from Altoona to Pittsburgh: leave Altoona at 7:15 P. M., and get to Pittsburgh at 1:15; leave Pittsburgh at 7:45 A. M., and arrive at Altoona at 1:45 P. M.; was conductor of mail train on the 29th of February last, starting at 7:15 P. M., from Altoona; two passengers got off at Mineral Point that night at 9:11, a man and a woman; they were on the train when I took it at Altoona; in passing through the cars for tickets defendant gave a ticket for Johnstown, I stepped on to the next passenger to get his ticket, and he (Moore) spoke to me and asked me if we stopped at Mineral Point; I turned to look at him and told him we did. I passed into the second car, when a lady handed me a ticket for Johnstown; I did not see her face, but she got off at Mineral Point; she had a veil over her face. When the train stopped at Mineral Point I was in the rear part of the train, saw prisoner and lady getting off the lower steps of car; they got off on the south track; this is on the opposite side from station-house, they started eastward; was on the platform when they stepped off car.

Other witnesses connected with the Railroad were also examined and gave corroborative testimony. The checking of the trunk belonging to the deceased was also proved to have been done by the prisoner, and also that he handed the check to the baggage master, and gave instructions as to where it should be sent. The articles in the trunk, which were found after the murder, were proved to be the property of Mrs. Moore.

Mrs. Groupel (a French woman) sworn—Reside in Osceola, Clearfield county; have seen prisoner before; he stayed five or six weeks at my house; he came the last of January, and went away the last of February; his lady was with him. [Interpreter sworn—Alphonso Veeshoan.] At the time prisoner left he left to go to Schuylkill; the woman gave her name as Moore; prisoner said she was his wife; they had a big trunk with them; saw the trunk; saw what was in the trunk; [trunk shown;] it looks like the same. [Opened by commonwealth to permit witness to examine articles in trunk with a view to identification. Defense objects.]

Cross-examined—Don't keep a public house; the trunk looks like the one that was at my house; a man that looked like Moore brought it there; knew Moore for the time he stayed at my house; believe the prisoner to be the man; never saw him before he came to my house; have not seen him since he left my house; he called himself Mort Moore; keep an eating-house; think the trunk was brought to my house in January; the man took it away; did not take the trunk.

[Witness examined trunk; contents: a delaine dress, coffee-pot, overskirt, a wrapper, a quilt, made at witness' house, a worked skirt, a blue sun-bonnet, a piece of green calico, a white skirt, a pair of scissors, a picture of the woman which she had herself; all these articles, and many others were identified by the witness without hesitation.

Wm. H. Denser, sworn—Reside in Osceola; knew Michael Moore; saw him the last week in January last; he wanted to rent a room from me, and then asked if I could tell where he could rent a room for himself and wife; said he wanted a room for his wife to live in; he then brought his wife from the station with him; he was away about an hour, and then he brought his wife with him; he stopped with me two days, and then they left; the woman paid me for the two days' boarding; she was a tall, old lady; her teeth appeared to me to be a good set of teeth for a woman of her age; she wore spectacles; appeared to be about fifty years of age; I saw Moore but once after I saw him first; the woman appeared to have a large sum of money with her; she had about $100 or $150 with her; I never saw her after that day.

Cross-Examined—I saw Moore in the cell at the jail; I recognized him on the first glance; he appeared to have a breaking out on the upper lip; he wore his moustache short; I am positive that the prisoner is the man.

Court adjourned at six o'clock.

He came to Pittsburgh, but left on the train the next morning, after which all trace of him was lost.

Twenty-Second Ward Text Book Question.

MESSRS. EDITORS: I see by your paper that you have published a set of resolutions, supposed to be from the people of the Twenty-second ward, asking me to resign my position as member of the Central Board of Education, from Colfax District, for violating my instructions for no change in text books. In reply to the above resolutions, I pronounce them utterly false. Those present at the meeting where they were offered, were furnished with a letter and had it read (from John A. Sergeant, Secretary of the Central Board of Education,) which contained a true copy from the minutes, wherein all votes either on text books or any business connected with the Central Board of Education, is approved and recorded, and in that letter stated the dates of the votes I gave on text books, showing I did not vary from my first vote, (May, 1869,) to my last in May 1872. I was informed by the constable of the Twenty-second ward that he and the squire elected for the Twenty-second ward had called an indignation meeting to denounce me for violating my instruction, in voting for a change in text books. I told the Constable to tell the 'Squire to drum up their force and prefer their charge to the Local Board which meets on the first Saturday of each month. We met and transacted our business connected with the Local Board, but neither Constable or 'Squire appeared, or any of his party. At about 7 o'clock P. M. the same evening I heard the Colfax school bell ringing. I did not know but some wedding had taken place, as the 'Squire represents Santa Claus with the sleigh bells around his neck. I repaired to the building and saw two Taylors, namely Edward and Bruner, and a respectable old citizen sitting in the corner of the vestibule with two other intelligent and respectable citizens, who composed the members present. I informed those two gentlemen how I had voted on the text books, as those two were men of intelligence, that said they could see no ground for a charge for violation of my instructions. After I returned to my home there appeared another Taylor, likewise the heavy clerk of the Chronicle, which placed a "Ray" of light in the chair, with a Leader's "(chamber)" he drafted indignation resolutions.

Very respectfully yours,
LEWIS J. FLEMING.

BROWNSVILLE, PA.

Items—Political and Other.

BROWNSVILLE, June 7, 1872.

The nomination of Grant and Wilson seems to give entire satisfaction to the Republicans of this community, though the general expectation was that it would be Grant and Colfax. We think every Republican vote can be counted on at the coming elections. There seems to be but little, if any, sympathy with Greeley, Schurz & Co., or with Sumner in his recent attack upon the President. We think they have all gone to the bad—poor fellows.

The Democrats of Fayette county have nominated Sam. Smith for re-election, for Assembly.

The river is rising a little and the river men are pleased. The country is looking beautifully since the showery weather has set in.

We are now enjoying a pleasant trip on the packet Elector. Our next will come from eastward. Yours, &c., C.

Grant and Wilson is the ticket which will sweep the State and the Union, while Urling, Follansbee & Co. will continue to supply both victors and vanquished with the neatest clothing, at the most reasonable prices and on the shortest order, at their establishment Southwest corner of Fifth avenue and Wood street.

THE LATE HON. THOMAS WILLIAMS.

His Obsequies—Honors to His Memory.

A large concourse of citizens attended the obsequies of the late Hon. Thomas Williams, on Saturday. The Pall-bearers were Messrs. John Morrison, Thomas M. Howe, Judge McCandless, Judge Hampton, Judge Veech, Thomas McConnell, J. J. Kuhn, Wm. M. Darlington, S. H. Geyer, A. S. Bell, James O'Hara and Josiah King. The Judges and Attorneys of the several Courts in a body, on foot, accompanied the cortege of carriages from the house of mourning to the intersection of Penn and Sixth street, where they stood uncovered while the procession passed, and then retired.

The Rev. Dr. Jacobus addressed the mourners and the assembled friends at the house, and the Rev Dr Preston officiated at the place of interment, according to the beautiful ritual of the Episcopalian church committing, "earth to earth, dust to dust, ashes to ashes," until the final resurrection at the last day.

On Saturday the Grand Jury of this county passed the following resolution referring to the decease of the Hon. Thomas Williams, on motion of R. H. Kerr, Esq.:

Resolved, That we have heard of the demise of the Hon. Thomas Williams (late a member of Congress), with feelings of deep sorrow. In the death of this estimable citizen we have lost a valued friend. He was a man of strict integrity in every relation of life, and we mingle our regrets with the community and condole with the bereaved family. We, the Grand Jury, do now adjourn as a testimonial of regard in honor of our lamented citizen, and we will attend the funeral in a body on to-morrow at 3 o'clock.

In the United States District Court on Saturday, Geo. Shiras, Esq., announced the decease of the Hon. Thos. Williams, and after a short review of his life and character, moved the adjournment of the Court.

Judge McCandless followed in a brief speech, in which he dwelt at some length upon the virtues of the deceased, both of heart and head, and said that he felt that in his removal he had lost a near and dear friend. Court was then adjourned in honor of the memory of the deceased.

DARING ROBBERY.

A Woman Drugged and Robbed—The Perpetrators Arrested.

On Saturday afternoon Fletcher Calvert and Jacob Oaks were arrested by the Mayor's detectives on a charge of larceny from the person. The complainant in the case is a woman known as Rose Smith. The story of the robbery as reported by her to Mayor Blackmore is as follows: On Thursday evening of every week a dance is held at a house in Soho where most of the loose, disorderly characters of the city, both male and female, make it their custom to assemble. On last Thursday evening Calvert and Oaks were among those who attended the place, as also was Rose Smith. She alleges that the two men named persuaded her to drink something in the dance room and that while under the influence of these potations they persuaded her to enter a carriage with them. When inside the vehicle the men gave her something more to drink, which she is persuaded was a concoction of some drugs. Immediately after partaking of this she lost all consciousness and did not recover her senses until she found herself in an unfrequented part of the road, and alone. After searching for her companions, she all at once thought that she might have been robbed, and immediately discovered that her gold watch and chain, a number of finger rings and all her money had disappeared. She was at once convinced that she had been robbed by Calvert and Oaks, and visiting the Mayor's office made her statement. Mayor Blackmore was very particular in his enquiries as to whether she was sure Calvert and Oaks were the men who placed her in the carriage, and the woman was equally certain that such was the case.

When taken before the Mayor on Saturday afternoon, both Calvert and Oaks gave bail for a hearing.

CIRCUS NOTES.

A Few Facts and Figures—How a Circus is Managed—Managerial Vicissitudes.

Judging from the favor with which the circus was received in the community last week, a few circus notes will not be uninteresting to the many who whiled away an hour or two under the canvass. There are in the United States, traveling the present season, no less than forty-four different circus companies. The fitting out of a first-class circus, exclusive of any menagerie, costs fully $100,000. The expenses of a new tent, with poles, ropes, seats, lamps, banners and entrance curtains, is little short of $5,000. The baggage wagons range in value from $270 to $700. The extra horses needed for them are from $500 to $600 a pair, and the great gilded show chariot for musicians costs from $1,500 to $2,000. Trick horses range from $1,500 to $3,000 in value; pad horses from $1,200 to $2,000 horseback act horses from $1,200 to $2,200, and the trick mules often cost $1,000 a pair. First-class stock gymnasts and riders receive from $75 to $100 per week, and their board for the traveling season. First-class men or women riders receive from $60 to $200 per week and their board; clowns from $60 to $100, and the mass of riders from $25 to $50. Equestrian stars receive from $500 to $1,200 a month. Six or ten acrobats, six riders, and a half dozen supernumeraries usually form the compliment of a circus in addition to the stars. The daily expenses for such an establishment are from $600 to $1,000. Barnum rates his expenses at $4,000 daily, but that is probably a Barnum exaggeration. Acrobats and gymnasts begin their education at four to eight years of age, when their young limbs are pliable, and sometimes earlier, and continue their violent exercises until nearly fifty, when their muscles become too rigid for the work. It is a mistake to suppose that circus men lead dissipated and spendthrift lives. The exercise of their calling requires relaxed sinews, a clear head, and a body in complete health. A miscalculation, or failure of strength during a leap might entail death. They are, therefore, very sparing, or entirely abstemious in the use of strong liquors, and very moderate in any gratification of sense whatever. Retired circus men may be found in many parts of the country, and are esteemed citizens. Their fondness for horses naturally leads them to a country life, where they can maintain their favorites cheaply. The amount invested in the forty-four circusses and menageries is $2,500,000. A town of 2,000 inhabitants will require about $200 of advance posters, and larger cities $500 to $1,000. Circuses do not travel during the winter in the Northern States. They either lay up until the spring, and start upon their tours from the 1st of April to the 10th of May, or they travel in the Southern States, beginning their marches from the 1st to the 10th of November. Their tours are laid out with the precision of a military plan, and the route, after being selected, is carefully adhered to. Not a point is forgotten in the preparations. About ten of the forty-four proprietors are wealthy. Avery Smith, of the old "European," is worth over a million; old John Robinson is worth over two millions; and Kelly, of the London and Van Amburg shows, is also nearly up to this figure. The great majority of show proprietors, from Dan Rice down, are in the hands of the sheriff from two to twenty times during each season. The weather is their greatest enemy, a rainy day setting them back badly.

GRAND CHANCE.

On account of the very wet weather prevailing till within a few minutes of train time on the morning of Friday (the advertised day of sale of 50 Lots at Fleming Station), only half a dozen gentlemen attended the sale. It was not expected that any sales whatever would be made, as the very disagreeable weather precluded any hope of the kind. Notwithstanding that fact, 10 Lots were sold to the six persons present, showing conclusively that the Lots possess great inherent merit, and really sell themselves. The programme announced for Friday will be carried out on MONDAY, 10th inst., when the entire plan (now 40 Lots) will be sold to the highest bidders without any reservation whatever. Should rain prevail on Monday morning, at the starting of the 10:10 Train, we will go by the 11:40, and in case of rain, then by the 1:20 P. M. A POSITIVE SALE is desired on MONDAY, in any event. Remember, then, that if it is fair weather on Monday morning, we will leave Federal street Station of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway, at 10 minutes past 10 o'clock, railway time. You need not take dinner along. We need hardly call any further attention to Fleming Station as a desirable place for investment in Lots, either for private residence or in anticipation of making a little money. The place is growing rapidly in popular favor. It is unquestionably the best Station on the Railroad; it has good water, good society, and lovely scenery. The time attending this sale will be well spent. Those who are strangers to the place will be astonished to find so much beauty near to the smoky city of Pittsburgh (only six miles). All aboard, then, the 10 o'clock train MONDAY MORNING.
